New Moves Against Tito Reportedly In Making

Cominform Chiefs Believed Mapping New Strategy At Sofia Meeting

(From Press Dispatches)

Belgrade, Aug. 28.—The Yugoslav Government and people maintained an outward calm today amid a flood of rumors the Russian-dominated Cominform may use force or subversion to try to wipe out the Tito regime.

Rumors of sabotage, espionage and troop movements were a dime a dozen in coffee shops and diplomatic corridors.

One of the reports was that military and political leaders of the Cominform are meeting in Sofia and plan to make "an important announcement" soon.

It was indicated this meeting was called to consider the next step by the Cominform in its dispute with Marshal Tito.

The government tonight denied Yugoslavia had sent army divisions into the Istrian Peninsula to prevent sabotage.

"Rumors" Are Denied

A printed declaration that Yugoslavia had challenged the right of Russian gunboats to cruise the Danube River in Yugoslav territorial waters was denied. The informant said Russia had that right under the Danube Navigation Charter. He denied flatly that Yugoslavia had asked a Russian boat to halt and it refused to comply.

In the "only-a-rumor" category he placed:

A report that Yugoslavia might seek to arraign Russia before the United Nations Security Council on grounds that Soviet notes to Yugoslavia contained a threat to peace.

The report that three Soviet mechanized divisions have entered Hungary from Romania and now are believed near the Yugoslav frontier.

Large numbers of Russian troops and armored equipment have been transferred from Romania to positions in Hungary opposite the Yugoslav frontier.

According to this report, the troops include at least two and possibly three mechanized divisions with large numbers of tanks, informants said.

Tito Believed at Resort

(A dispatch from Istanbul, Turkey, quoted top-ranking diplomatic and intelligence sources as saying Tito is continuously massing forces in Yugoslav-Macedonia to counteract Cominform designs for stirring up rebellion in his country.

Most observers said the apparently deliberate advertisement of Soviet troop movements and of the

Yanks Win Two, Henrich Injured; Tribe Beats Bosox

The New York Yankees won a double-header to increase their American League lead to three games yesterday, but at the same time they received a stunning blow when Tommy Henrich suffered a "serious" shoulder injury.

The team's leading batter is feared out for the season as the result of his crash against the wall in the first game of a doubleheader against the White Sox in Chicago. Yankee First Baseman Johnny Mize injured his shoulder in the same game.

While the Yankees were winning two games, Boston dropped an 11-inning tiff to Cleveland, 2-1. The Nats trounced the Browns, 13-2, but lost the nightcap, 4-3.

In tennis, Ted Schroeder spanked Australia's Billy Sedgman to retain the Davis Cup for the United States.

Bus Skids and Turns Over on Car . . .

ON WET ROAD—This Greyhound bus, chartered to return a group of worshipers from a church meeting in Morrisville, Fauquier County, skidded on Route 17, 10 miles west of Fredericksburg, Va. China Policy Looms as Big Legion Issue

One Faction Wants Nation Written Off As Lost to the Reds

Philadelphia, Aug. 28 (AP).—A resolution urging continued aid to anti-Communist forces in China won approval of the American Legion national executive committee today on the eve of the thirty-first annual Legion convention.

The chairman of convention committee promptly announced that an opposite view—to write off China as lost and build a western Pacific barrier to further Communist expansion—would be brought before the delegate and alternates.

The showdown on Legion policy in United States relations with China is expected Wednesday, when the 6500 Legion delegates vote on resolutions.

The four-day convention, biggest in Legion history, opens Monday. President Truman, a Missouri delegate, speaks at 2 p. m. EST before a joint session of the Legion and its women's auxiliary.

The resolution on China was presented to the executive committee by Leon Happell of Stockton, Calif., chairman of the foreign relations commission.

In addition, it urged establishment of a Pacific pact similar to the North Atlantic pact.

Erle Cocke of Dawson, Ga., chairman of the Legion's national security commission, said his group would recommend that China be written off as lost to communism.

Cocke said the security commission will recommend that the United States fortify Japan, Alaska and the Philippines.

Cocke said his committee and the foreign relations group were both "basically in favor of an alliance in the Far East to protect us from future aggression."

Communism, a top-priority issue in the past three Legion conventions, may take a back seat this time behind foreign policy and recommendations for the armed services.

Among newly suggested resolutions are two to withhold veterans' benefits from Communists and bar Communists from Government scholarships. The Americanism committee again has received a request that the Legion urge Congress to outlaw the Communist Party.

Legionnaires poured into Philadelphia all day. By nightfall most of the expected 6500 delegates and some 50,000 visitors had moved into prearranged housing facilities.

Troops Move Up

Rebel-Held City Bombed By Bolivians

La Paz, Bolivia, Aug. 28 (AP).—Government forces bombed rebel-held Cochabamba today, then issued an ultimatum for revolutionists entrenched there to surrender or be annihilated.

The rebels at Cochabamba, 130 miles southeast of the capital, are part of those who struck yesterday at several points in an attempt to overthrow the middle-of-the-road government.

A government communique said six air force planes dropped 140 bombs on Cochabamba, damaging the airport, and burning one rebel plane parked on the ground.

The general staff said two rebel pursuit planes tried unsuccessfully to attack the six government bombers in the raid.

The total effect of the bombing was not disclosed. The general staff communique said 50 bombs were dropped on the landing field, others nearby, and one on a radio station in the city.

Reports to the army general staff here said 2000 loyal government troops, balked earlier in attempted airborne landings at Cochabamba, had driven through by train and surrounded the city.

District Mother Finds Baby Boy Dead in His Crib

Joseph D. Lehnerd, 2-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Lehnerd, 4218 Lily Ponds dr. ne., died early yesterday in his crib of asphyxiation due to suffocation.

The child's mother told police the infant had signs of a cold Saturday night and on recommendation of a physician was treated with nose drops and penicillin tablets. He was given a bottle about 10:30 p.m., then went to sleep.

Mrs. Lehnerd found him face-down in the crib at 7:30 a.m. Dr. Bernard Katzen pronounced him dead and Dr. Christopher Murphy, deputy District coroner, issued the death certificate.

The Lehnerds have one other child, Kathie Lee, 16 months old.

At least 12 other infants have died in the Washington area this year under similar circumstances.

Robeson Asks U. S. to Probe 'Terrorism'

Nation-Wide Drive On Negroes by KKK And Legion Charged

New York, Aug. 28 (NYHT.).—Paul Robeson tonight called for a Department of Justice investigation of "the American Legion and the Ku Klux Klan in New York State" as a result of rioting that broke up his scheduled concert near Peekskill, N. Y., last night.

He said the action of parading war veterans who became embroiled with those seeking to attend the concert was "an attack on the whole Negro people."

The Negro singer discussed the affair at a press conference here on his arrival from Peekskill, where he spent Saturday night and most of today. He said he did not know of any plans for another concert in that part of the State, but that if one is held he will be there.

"I am not going to be frightened by any Legionnaires," he said. "They had better be careful."

Saturday's concert was scheduled as a benefit for the Harlem chapter of the Civil Rights Congress, an organization listed as subversive by the then Attorney General Tom Clark. There had been considerable tension in Peekskill and the surrounding area from the time it was first announced the affair will be held at a picnic ground about 3 miles west of town.

Robeson said he arrived in Peekskill by train from New York

Hunt Denial Adds Zest To 5% Quiz

Two Senators Insist Probe Be Held Open Until He and Bennett Are Able to Testify

By The Associated Press

Two Senators insisted yesterday that the 5-percenter investigation be held open until a couple of much-discussed figures, James V. Hunt and David Bennett, both ill, can appear.

There was talk of a quick wind-up after this week's big show—the questioning Tuesday of Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, whose name has been linked with testimony about both Hunt and Bennett.

Hunt, self-described Washington management counselor, has just handed the Senate Investigating Committee a 6000-word affidavit which included a statement that he never asked Vaughan to do anything more important than to get some football tickets.

But this affidavit only whetted the appetite of Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.), who called it inconclusive.

Many Questions to Ask

"We will have many questions to ask him about it, particularly regarding his relations with Vaughan," Mundt said.

He joined with Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) in urging that the committee not call a halt, but merely recess, in order to make an effort later to hear Hunt and Bennett.

Physicians have certified that both men are unable to testify at this time. Hunt's attorney told the committee his client will be glad to appear when his health will permit.

Bennett heads the Albert Verley Perfume Co., of Chicago, which paid for seven home freezers which Vaughan sent to high Washington figures early in the Truman Administration. Vaughan, who is President Truman's Army aide, said they were gifts to him through friendship.

As for Hunt, he told the committee in his affidavit that there is no truth about much of the testimony concerning him. Further, he said it seems to him the inquiry has produced "conclusive evidence of the absence of any improper influence on his part.

Hunt said that if the committee had found any evidence of bribery or corruption he would have "heard from the Justice Department by this time."

Neat Timing Job, He Says

Commenting on Hunt's affidavit, Mundt said that in his opinion it represents "a very neat job of timing in view of the fact that it comes out just two days before Vaughan is scheduled to testify."

"My interest in wanting Hunt to testify as soon as his health permits has been magnified many times by his affidavit. It seems to me to be a very inconclusive document."

Vaughan will have a chance to discuss all the episodes in which his name has come up.

D. C. Doctor Flown There

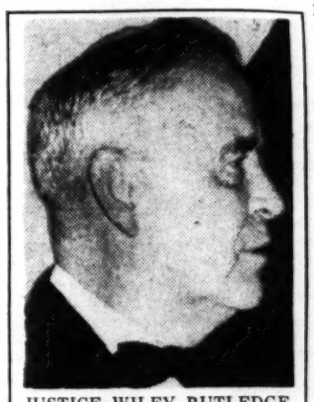
Rutledge in Maine Hospital With Circulatory Ailment

York, Me., Aug. 28 (U.P.).—Associate Justice Wiley B. Rutledge of the United States Supreme Court is hospitalized here for treatment of a "circulatory condition," it was disclosed tonight.

A statement from the 55-year-old justice's family said his condition was "improving."

Justice Rutledge was feared in such serious condition when admitted to York Hospital last night that his wife maintained a night-long vigil by his bedside and his personal physician was flown here from Washington before dawn in an Army B-25 plane.

However, his condition improved so rapidly that his wife was able to leave the hospital for a rest and the physician, Dr. Fred A. J. Geier of 1801 I st. nw., left to return to Washington. He was grounded in New York tonight and unavailable for comment.



JUSTICE WILEY RUTLEDGE
Seriously ill . . .

A hospital attache said Dr. Geier, apparently satisfied with his patient's condition, turned his case over to Dr. Elmer Power of the hospital staff.

Justice Rutledge, who had been vacationing at nearby Oguniquit, was admitted to the hospital about 8 p. m. (EDT) last night after arriving in a private automobile.

A hospital attache said he was in "such very serious condition" that Dr. Grier was summoned.

Gravel Strike Slated Today; Offer Rejected

Conciliator Expected To Seek New Talks Early This Week

About 175 union employes of the Smoot Sand & Gravel Corp. were scheduled to strike at 7:30 a. m. today after turning down a company offer for the second time yesterday.

The walkout was expected to affect much of the construction work here, as the company is the major supplier of sand and gravel in the area.

Members of the unions involved, Local 77, International Union of Operating Engineers, and Local 639 of the Teamsters Union, both AFL, had planned a strike last Monday, but deferred it a week for further negotiations.

They met yesterday at Teamsters Hall, 1300 13th st. nw., and again rejected the offer they had turned down August 20.

They have been asking an increase of 25 cents an hour for all employes. The offer, rejected twice, was for a hospitalization insurance program, with a bonus plan as an alternative, which union

Jobless Pay Claims Take Sharp Drop

U. S. Official Reports Encouraging Sign in Slackening Layoffs

By the United Press

New claims for unemployment benefits have dropped sharply and are at the lowest level since last November, it was disclosed yesterday.

Robert C. Goodwin, Director of the Bureau of Employment Security, advised Secretary of Labor Tobin that such claims have declined steadily with one exception since mid-July.

"This is an encouraging sign," Goodwin's report said, "since it indicates a steady slackening in the rate of new industrial lay-offs in recent weeks."

Dividend Payments

The Commerce Department announced that publicly reported cash dividend payments, a good economic barometer, totaled $493,600,000 last July, $2,500,000 down from the same month last year.

For the three months ending July 1, the department said, payments totaled $1,152,700,000, an increase of 8 per cent over the same 1948 period.

"Publicly-reported dividends represent from 60 to 65 per cent of all cash dividends paid.

Decrease of 31,893

Goodwin said that "initial claims," those filed by persons seeking unemployment benefits for the first time, totaled 259,207 during the week ended August 20. That was 31,893 fewer than the previous week.

Latest reports, he said, show such claims declined in 40 States. The others reported a slight increase, with Minnesota the only one to show an increase of 200 or more. It had a 600 rise.

Gary Police Close Beach, Balk Riot Blamed on Reds

Gary, Ind., Aug. 28 (U.P.).—One hundred police armed with riot guns closed a public beach today when about 50 persons sought to stage a demonstration protesting alleged racial discrimination.

Police Capt. Peter Billick said he believed the incident was "Communist-inspired."

Police said there was no fighting, but that the automobiles of two demonstrators were damaged.

Billick said the protesting group was known as the Young Citizens for Beachhead Democracy.

He said about 50 of them announced plans to stage a demonstration at Miller Beach on Lake Michigan to protest the alleged barring of Negroes.

Power Lines, Trees Fall As Tail of Storm Hits

Electricity Fails In NW. Washington Section, Bethesda And Silver Spring

Remnants of the Florida hurricane struck Greater Washington last midnight, breaking tree limbs, downing wires and leaving large areas of Northwest Washington and adjoining Maryland without power.

The wind averaged 40 miles an hour, but gusts were recorded by the Weather Bureau at National Airport up to 54 miles an hour. The wind was accompanied by sheets of rain.

Police and Fire Department telephones were busy with reports of trees and wires blown down and limbs broken. The power blackout extended from the Connecticut ave. area in the city through Bethesda, Silver Spring, Wheaton and Kensington.

Police estimated that storm trouble calls poured into the switchboard at a rate of 3 per minute from 10:30 p.m. until 2 p.m.

At one time every police car was handling calls. More than 80 calls concerned falling trees or limbs.

Live wires were reported to have caused two house fires, one in the Sixth Precinct and one at 1604 Buchanan st. nw.

In rapid-fire order, police received such reports as:

Broken wires sparking at 9th and Juniper sts. nw., live wire down in 2300 block of Monroe st. ne., tree across sidewalk in 1800 block M st. nw.

More wires down at Central and Division aves. ne., at 3500 Albemarle st. nw., at 38th and Brandywine sts. nw. Live wire at 37th and Veazey st. nw.

Trees down at 3554 Warder st. nw., tree across streetcar tracks at 19th and G sts. nw., tree limb on street at 13th and E sts. se.

At 1600 E. Capitol st., falling trees were said to have damaged at least six cars.

At Brookeville rd. and Chevy Chase Circle, a large tree was reported down over the road blocking Brookeville rd.

In Silver Spring, power lines were reported falling so rapidly police couldn't keep up with the calls or get in touch with the power company.

A low-flying plane buzzed the police station with landing lights on but landed safely at an Army field.

Lights were reported out in Wheaton, Md., and a large part of suburban Alexandria.

The storm, moving northeastward, crossed into southwest Virginia early last night with Roanoke experiencing gusts up to 45 miles an hour accompanied by a heavy rain. Gradually it worked its way toward Washington.

Storm warnings were ordered displayed from Savannah, Ga., northward to the Delaware breakwater, including Chesapeake Bay area.

Precautions were taken locally, with Harbor Police warning boat clubs and individuals against boating on the Potomac.

At the Anacostia Naval Air Station, planes were moved from low to higher ground and moorings tightened.

No flight cancellations were reported at National Airport pending development of the storm, which was expected to reach its peak here at 5 a. m. today.

The disturbance rapidly was losing its force as it proceeded overland, the Weather Bureau said, pointing out that the natural friction of the terrain breaks up such storms.

Movement of the storm is expected to draw down a cool air mass from the Great Lakes region which, it was said, will result in cooler weather today with a high in the low 80s.

High yesterday was 87 at 12:42 p.m. Low was 72 at 6:10 a.m.

Woman Says Pshaw to Men; Bachelor Belittles Fair Sex

California Official Bemoans Vanity As a Road Menace

Rep. Reva Bosone, A Former Judge, Defends the Ladies

(A report on women drivers written by Bob Johnson and Muriel Barnett of the Los Angeles Mirror.)

By Charles E. Davis, Jr.
Post Reporter

Men drivers? Pshaw! Women drivers are better any day in the week.

This is the opinion of Representative Reva Beck Bosone (D., Utah), who studied hundreds of traffic cases as a judge in Salt Lake City.

"We've always had a saying out in Utah," says Judge Bosone, "if a driver up front was loafing along and hogging the highway, we'd say, 'Must be a fat man with a pipe.' And it usually was. They're too fat to turn their necks to see who's behind."

Judge Bosone feels strongly on the subject. In Washington, she prefers riding with women cab drivers. Male cabbies lean too heavily on the brakes, she says.

"I've got a cross-country trip coming up and I'm glad it's going to be with a woman driver. Wom-

Round No. 1 in Battle Of Sexes Over Driving

Women have been talking about men drivers since the day Henry Ford disrupted carriage traffic in Detroit; and men have been talking about women drivers for almost as long. The Los Angeles Mirror summed up the case against women drivers in a recent series The Washington Post felt its readers should see. Three noted Washington women speak for their sex in appraising men drivers. This is an argument anybody can join. Begin with these two articles and continue at the breakfast table.

She is long-haired and all decked out in high-heeled shoes, dark gloves and smoked glasses.

She is dressed smartly in a tight-fitting dress and a new side-slung hat, with feathers.

Her habits include smoking and window shopping.

This description is furnished by Edwin D. Fletcher, senior examiner of the California State Department of Motor Vehicles. He is a bachelor.

Men ask: "What in the world makes women drive that way?"

Aha, says Fletcher, the clothes they wear for one thing.

Women these days (he says) are literally dressed-to-kill in traffic. Chic is stalking our highways. The creations of Lilly Dache are making death traps out of the creations of Henry Ford.

Move Weighed to Let Britain Put Up Bars on U. S. Goods

By The Associated Press

The United States may grant the British permission to discriminate temporarily against American goods, Government officials reported yesterday.

It would be a move intended to help Britain in her financial crisis.

These officials, connected with the preliminary British-American-Canadian financial talks now in progress, said United States negotiators are "seriously considering" relaxing the terms of the 1946 British loan agreement to remove American goods from their present status.

Under the loan agreement, Britain got $3,750,000,00 from the United States in return for a promise to treat American exports the same as those from the Empire countries and Europe.

The British now are reported to have requested the Administration to relax the loan accord to halt some of the drain on dwindling reserves.

Administration officials are reported to believe this could be done without going to Congress for approval.

It was acknowledged some American exporters would be hurt. But advocates of the proposal said there appears to be no alternative; the stake is now Britain's survival as an independent nation allied with the United States in the "cold war."

Americans Seek Noah's Ark As Ararat Ascent Starts

By Edwin Greenwald

Dogu Bayazit, Turkey, Aug. 28 (AP). — Five Americans started up Mount Ararat at dawn today to determine finally whether Noah's Ark is there.

It will be several days at best before any results are known. Mount Ararat is 16,000 feet high and broad in expanse. But the Ark, if there is one, should be somewhere about the 10,000-foot line.

Turkey granted permission for the climb in the face of strenuous Russian protests that the Americans were not bent on finding the Ark, but acting as spies. The mountain looks down on Soviet territory from where, in 1916, came a Russian aviator who swore he saw on Ararat a ship identical to that of Noah as described in the Bible.

The climbers started from their base in this peasant village, located 20 miles from the Turkish-Russian-Iranian frontier. They were loaded with supplies and accompanied by a Turkish escort.

A hot summer that washed much of the snow and ice off Ararat was in their favor. The mountain normally is well-shrouded.

Democrats Open Drive Against Taft

Hamilton, Ohio, Aug. 28 (AP).—Senator Anderson (D., N. Mex.) today ridiculed GOP barbs of "Welfare State" and "Statism" hurled at the Truman Administration in opening a Democratic drive to defeat Senator Taft (R., Ohio) in the 1950 elections.

Firing the first salvo in Taft's home county of Hamilton at a party rally at Lesourdsville Lake, north of here, Anderson denied Americans have lost any of their liberties under President Truman.

He said the President looks forward with hope to electing in 1950 "sufficient numbers" to carry out every part of his legislative program. Then he added with an apparent reference to Taft:

"He (Mr. Truman) sees possibilities in many States, and while I would not want to tell any secrets, I can tell you in the bosom of the family that his eyes twinkle when he surveys the prospects in the State of Ohio."

"Here in Bob Taft's home district," he said, "I want to ask you what liberties you have lost? Liberty has been under attack all over the world and it has been lost in many lands, but what liberty have we lost in America?"

Anderson said a new GOP slogan is "not me," in contrast to what he called the "me, too," days of Governor Dewey in 1944 and the "sweet unity" campaign of 1948. He said "not me" had been applied to such questions as "better labor laws."

By The Associated Press

Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) said yesterday a Republican Congress will be elected next year "to stop the biggest give-away show on earth."

The Senate Republican leader accused "the Truman Democrats" of threatening "our historic way of life through socialism, spendthrift Government and unbearable taxes."

Contending that Congress could pass essential election legislation, order a 10 per cent cut in appropriations, and adjourn in 30 days, Wherry said on the radio (ABC):

"The Truman Administration has presented measures that would threaten the solvency of our Government, destroy competitive enterprise, and carry the United States deeper into the swamps of socialism."

Gabrielson Joins Attack

The President's program also was lambasted by the new Republican chairman, Guy Gabrielson.

Gabrielson said in another radio program that his party should work to save the Nation from "destructive effects" of what he called Mr. Truman's "promise everything policies."

Any restatement of Republican Party principles for the 1950 campaign, Gabrielson said, necessarily must include "opposition to the ruinous proposals of Mr. Truman and his White House advisers."

He added he sees no occasion for any "substantial changes" in the party's 1948 platform.

He asserted the Republicans have an excellent chance to regain control of Congress next year because the people "are becoming more and more disgusted with the ineptness and the extravagances of the Truman Administration."

Constrasts Beliefs

Discussing the primary differences between the two major parties, Gabrielson told a representative of the Gannett newspapers that the Democrats believe in attaining objectives "regardless of constitutional limitations" and effects on the Nation's economy.

Republicans, he added, believe in operating within the constitutional framework and favor realistic consideration of the financial feasibility of all projects.

Although there is some apathy at present, the chairman said he does not anticipate any serious difficulty in raising enough money to carry on "an effective and hard-hitting campaign" next year.

Wherry declared that it would take seven stacks of silver dollars reaching to the moon to pay the costs over a 50-year period of requests President Truman has made "under the label of social welfare." He figured it at one trillion 250 billion dollars.

He accused the Administration of having given aid ond comfort to Russian-directed Communist troops in China and of supporting the Socialist governments in Europe.

"Both are the same cloth; both wind up in dictatorship," the Nebraskan continued.

Balcony Critic Is Reported On Way Out

NYHT News Service

Gilmore D. Clarke, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission, who incurred President Truman's wrath a year and a half ago in the dispute over the building of the White House balcony, is being quietly dropped from the commission, it was learned yesterday.

An eminent landscape architect and consulting engineer, dean of the Cornell University school of architecture and a member of the board of visitors of the Harvard graduate school of design, he has been a member of the commission by successive four-year appointments, for 18 years.

Reappointment Asked

His last term expired in March and his six colleagues unanimously asked the President to reappoint him. Meanwhile, pursuant to the Act of Congress which set up the advisory group in 1910, he has continued to serve pending his reappointment or the naming of a successor.

Neither before March nor since then has there been any official indication from the White House as to whether Clarke is to be reappointed. But yesterday it was learned definitely from persons close to the White House that Clarke will not be reappointed. At the moment at least there are no plans at the White House to inform him of the decision.

No Word on a Shakeup

Whether Clarke's departure from a post in which he has served without remuneration also will signal a general shakeup in the group that opposed the President's balcony, has not yet been decided The terms of three other members, William T. Aldrich, an architect of Boston; L. Andrew Reinhard, architect of New York, and Maurice Sterne, sculptor of New York, expire at the end of this month. The question of reappointing them has been discussed at the White House, but no decision has been made.

Clarke, who is a Republican, could not be reached yesterday for comment and two other members of the commission, David E. Finley of Washington, director of the National Gallery of Art, and Lee Lawrie, sculptor of Easton, Md., refused to discuss the matter when reached by telephone at their homes.

Arms Aid Cut Fight Heading For Showdown

By The Associated Press

The Senate fight over the Administration's big arms aid program stepped up in intensity yesterday with two major committees aiming at a showdown vote by midweek.

The Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees will have another go today at proposals for two major changes in the program which calls for $1,450,000,000 cash, plus sending surplus arms to strengthen other nations against any Russian aggression.

The two proposals involve a fight led by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) for a $160,990,000 slash in the bill's $1,160,990,000 military help for European members of the Atlantic alliance, and an amendment by Senator Knowland (R., Calif.) to mark non-Communist China in for assistance.

Navy's Probe In B-36 Case Opens Today

By the United Press

Three admirals today begin a closed-door investigation that could lead to a drastic upheaval in the Navy Department as a result of attacks on the Air Force and its B-36 superbomber.

Heading the special Court of Inquiry appointed by Secretary of the Navy Matthews is Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, commander of the Eastern Sea Frontier and a seagoing man of conspicuous achievements in the Pacific war.

The court's assignment is to find out who, if anyone, besides Cedric R. Worth, a suspended civilian assistant to Undersecretary Kimball, circulated rumors of political influence behind B-36 purchases. The charges pictured the superbomber as a plane of inferior capabilities.

about 9 p. m. Saturday and was driven by friends to the scene. He explained that traffic was extremely heavy, so that he did not reach the entrance to the picnic grounds until 9:45.

His party remained in the automobile near the entrance for about 10 minutes, but left when it became apparent the disorder made presentation of the program impossible. He said he did not see any policemen while he was there, but did see a burning cross.

'Powerful Forces' Seen

The trouble at Peekskill was not an isolated incident, according to Robeson, but part of a Nation-wide "campaign of terror" against progressive forces. 'Behind those few Legionnaires are powerful forces," he asserted. "These boys were told to do it."

He denied there had been any intention to turn the concert into a rally of left-wing elements, and said it had not been his intention to make a speech. He sings "anti-Fascist" songs, he said, and usually explains them before he begins.

Earlier in the day Clyde Lewis of Plattsburg, N. Y., newly elected national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, declared his organiaztion "would be only too happy to buy a one-way ticket to Russia for Paul Robeson."

Asked to comment on this, Robeson said both sides of his family had been in this country, as slaves, from Revolutionary times and "that gives me the right to live in this country for the rest of my life."

Present at the Robeson press conference was New York City Councilman Benjamin J. Davis, one of the 11 Communist leaders on trial for conspiracy.

He said he intends to introduce a resolution in the council condemning the "shocking act of Fascist violence against Paul Robeson" at Peekskill. "Every New Yorker must blush for it," he declared.

Officials' Ouster Asked

A young woman introduced as Virginia Muir of the American Slav Congress, another organization on the Attorney General's subversive list, said her automobile was stoned, looted and then toppled over a 15-foot cliff by men demonstrating against the concert.

She said she had driven to the concert with friends but that, as they approached the entrance, they were spit on and called vile names. After she left her car, she said, she was struck several times by unidentified men.

Arthur Shutzer, New York State executive secretary of the American Labor Party, called the riot an "open official conspiracy" in Westchester County to break up the concert.

This view was supported by Representative Vito Marcantonio, State chairman of the A.L.P., who said "the attack . . . was organized with the direct knowledge and aid of Westchester County Clerk Robert J. Field and Assistant District Attorney Leonard Rubenfeld." He demanded Governor Dewey oust the two officials.

"The so-called Joint Veterans Council of Westchester County had brazenly announced it was going to stop Robeson from singing and cause trouble," a statement issued by the Civil Rights Congress said in part.

"A lynching-bee spirit against Robeson was roused in the community . . . the responsibility . . . may be traced directly to former Attorney General Tom Clark, to the Un-American Committee and to the Truman Administration . . ."

Wallace Urges Probe

The New York State committee of the Communist Party took an even more violent stand concerning what it called a "despicable and outrageous attack." It called the disorder a "Fascist outbreak . . . aimed to snuff out the life" of Robeson. It demanded that Governor Dewey "immediately outlaw the rapidly reviving Ku Klux Klan in New York."

"The way of violence is not the American way," said Henry Wallace, Progressive candidate for President last year, in urging investigation of the disorder and prosecution of those responsible. "I thought New York was immune to this kind of thing."

A statement of protest and "shock" was issued also by officials of the New York membership of the CIO-United Office and Professional Workers of America.

New Appearance Planned

Tonight, several hundred persons met at the home of Dr. Samuel Rosen, at Katonah, N. Y. to conduct a protest meeting against the Peekskill rioters.

Mrs. Rosen said she had asked State police to send troopers and several patrolled roads leading to the home. She said it was called to protest "Fascist violence" and to make plans for a substitute appearance by Robeson in Westchester County.

The most seriously injured in the clashes were William Secor, 24, stabbed in the abdomen, and William Bybel of Harmon, N. Y., whose head was bruised. They were in Peekskill Hospital, where Secor was on the critical list.

Seven other persons were given medical attention and discharged, but witnesses said dozens of others who were hurt slightly by rock, stick or fist blows left without formal attention.

Those who organized the demonstration today insisted they had intended it only to be a peaceful expression of their patriotic disapproval of Robeson's scheduled appearance in their neighborhood.

"Object" Achieved

The full story of the riot was confused in the bitter charges of concert-goers and accounts of demonstrators, but the public feeling in surrounding communities seemed to be approval of last night's events.

"Our objective was to prevent the Paul Robeson concert, and I think our objective was reached," Milton Flynt, commander of Peekskill Post 274, American Legion, said today.

"Anything which happened after the organized demonstration took place was entirely up to individual citizens and cannot be blamed on the patriotic organizations. Last night's should serve notice upon the "pinks" that Peekskill and the town of Courtland don't want anything pertaining to Paul Robeson."

Hurricane Blows Out

lowland residents to be evacuated. The wind uprooted trees, broke store windows, tore shingles from roofs, and put power and communications lines out of order.

Tides were higher than usual along the Georgia-Carolina coastline, but not as high as expected and damage was negligible.

While gales up to 60 miles an hour lashed Carolina cities, the once-giant hurricane—which cost Florida millions of dollars in damage—blew itself out crossing the central Piedmont section of the two States.

Lumberton, N. C. and Florence, S. C., reported gusts of 60 miles an hour, but damage was limited largely to broken trees. Greensboro, N. C., had a recording of 58 miles an hour without damage to the city.

At Charleston, S. C., a 55-mile wind pulled trees from the sandy soil, tore down power lines and piled a choppy sea into the streets.

At Myrtle Beach a 55-mile wind tore shingles off roofs, broke store windows and demolished signs.

A 40-mile gale struck Wilmington, N. C., and the beaches in that vicinity.

At Columbia, S. C., gusts reached 45 miles an hour, but did relatively little damage.

The storm center passed west of Charlotte to hit the Winston-Salem-Greensboro area and into Virginia en route back toward the sea. The storm continued to lessen in intensity.

In its final storm advisory, the Weather Bureau at Washington said precautions should be taken from Savannah to Delaware breakwater, including Chesapeake Bay, against high tides and winds.

Floridians got no Sunday rest today. They followed the wide path of the hurricane to add up its damage. It was terrific.

Giveaway Ban Assailed as Overstepping

The Federal Communications Commission "trifled" with the Constitution in ruling against radio giveaway programs recently, Broadcasting Magazine will charge in an editorial today.

The radio magazine will accuse the three commission members who approved the ruling of an action extending "even beyond program control."

"It proposes to usurp the functions of the courts and of the Department of Justice," the editorial will state. "It overrules the Postoffice Department which has cleared as not in violation of the anti-lottery statutes some of the very programs that would be outlawed . . ."

The three commissioners who voted to outlaw the giveaway programs as lotteries were Acting Chairman Paul A. Walker and Edward M. Webster and George E. Sterling.

Close to Thought Control

"This threesome," says the editorial, "promulgated rules closer to 'thought control' than anything that's ever emanated from a United States government agency in peacetime."

Broadcasting says "the rules invoke program censorship."

The editorial points out that Broadcasting has in the past opposed giveaway programs as "parasitic," then adds:

"But no matter how abominable the programming, the predilections of three commissioners, or all seven, would not be the answer."

The editorial says three of the seven commissioners did not vote, although one had prepared a strong dissent to the ruling, so the vote possibly could have been 4 to 3 against such a ruling.

To Trepass Is to Censor

"Programming," declares the magazine, "provides the editorial content of radio. It is forbidden territory. To trespass is to censor. That is in contravention of the First Amendment.

"If there are lotteries on the air, let the Department of Justice move. The courts will decide . . .

"But before court action becomes necessary, it behooves the full FCC . . . to set aside the action of the threesome, vacate the rules and set down the proceeding for reargument."

Gray, Head of VA, Addresses 6 Centenarians of the GAR

Indianapoli, Aug. 28 (U.P.).—Six gnarled veterans of the Civil War, among the last of the boys in blue, met in their final encampment today.

The final encampment opened with a memorial service in the rooftop ballroom of the Indiana Theater Building, with United States Veterans Administrator Carl Gray as the principal speaker.

Of the Nation's 16 surviving Union Army veterans, only the half dozen were able to make the trip here for the eighty-third and final meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The six, all of them over 100, gathered for a final farewell, and to swap again stories of the battles they fought in 85 years ago.

Then, they are scheduled to disband their once-powerful organization which at its peak numbered 409,000.

But among the handful of aging men there still was a sentiment to meet again next year.

James A. Hard, 108, oldest of the group, arrived by plane from Rochester, N. Y., today. He favors further encampments.

Hard, the last of the veterans to arrive, was preceded by pepperytongued Charles L. Chappel, 102, who flew in from Burbank, Calif., and announced he planned a "real scrap" for holding another GAR election. Chappel is the GAR's senior vice commander, and wants to become commander before he dies.

Robert Barrett, 102, Princeton, Ky., who made the trip by automobile, and Joseph Clovese, 105, who came by train from Pontiac, Mich., arrived earlier today. Clovese is the GAR's only Negro survivor.

Yesterday Theodore A. Penland, 100, Portland, Oreg., GAR commander, and Albert Woolson, 102, Duluth, Minn., arrived.

Israel Ready to Join Arabs In Developing Middle East

Tel Aviv, Israel, Aug. 28 (U.P.).—Israeli Foreign Minister, Moshe Sharret, said today his government was willing to sponsor joint development schemes in the Middle East in cooperation with neighboring Arab states.

He made the statement in a general survey of Israel's foreign policy.

Asked whether he would be prepared to consider joint action with Hashemite Jordan on the Jordan Valley authority plan, the foreign minister said it was the definite policy of Israel to be ready to sponsor joint development schemes in cooperation with neighboring governments."

He added that two prerequisites for such cooperation were the existence of "stable, mutually accepted peace," and the "willingness of the other party to engage in such projects."

Decline in Prices Boosts Prop Needs

By the United Press

Government price support buying is holding up the price of eggs, butter, cheese, potatoes and milk, a survey showed yesterday.

At this time last year eggs and potatoes were the only farm foods produced for direct consumption that were receiving support. Other foods generally were selling above support levels.

Now the price trend is generally downward, Agriculture Department officials said, and sometime this fall the Government may have to start buying pork, turkeys and chickens to hold prices at support levels.

Congress is working now on a price support law for 1950. The House already has voted to continue the present law of mandatory high supports for many perishable foods next year. But many farm State Senators oppose this as too costly. The Senate Agriculture Committee is expected to recommend a compromise measure this week.

So far this year, officials said, the Government has taken off the market the equivalent of a 16-day domestic supply of butter, a two week's domestic supply of eggs, a week's supply of potatoes and a half-day's supply of cheese. This has cost 137 million dollars.

Losses on this 137-million-dollar outlay probably will be heavy because the Government has no market outlets for the bulk of its holdings, officials said. It has not been able to sell its eggs to foreign buyers at even half price.

The eggs do not include an additional 20 million dollars' worth still held in storage from last year's purchases. Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has privately warned Democratic congressional farm leaders that the egg support stockpile will amount to 100 million dollars' worth by the end of the year.

The reported potato spending includes only the 1949 crop, which began moving to market in the spring. It does not include the 225 million dollars the Government lost in supporting last year's surplus crop.

The Government's big stockpile of butter provides assurance for consumers that butter prices will not rise sharply this fall or winter when production tapers off, officials said. They said the Government would sell back some of its butter on the market if and when the market price moves above support levels.

Leaders Called

Farm Feud End Sought By Truman

By The Associated Press

A direct move by President Truman to end a feud among his Democratic advisers on farm programs was disclosed yesterday by Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.).

Thomas, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, told a reporter that the President has invited "quite a group of us down to the White House Wednesday to talk over the farm legislation."

It was learned that those invited in addition to Thomas include Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, Chairman Cooley (D., N. C.) of the House Agriculture Committee, Senate Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.) and Senator Anderson (D., N. Mex.).

"I hope the President tells us exactly what he wants for a farm program next year," Thomas said. "If he does that, I'll certainly support it. It would be silly to do anything else because he certainly would veto it."

Thomas, alone among the 13-member Senate Agriculture Committee, has been plugging publicly for another year of the rigid, high-level price supports already voted by the House.

"But I'm going to be for the President's recommendations because I'm sure he's for high supports just as I am," Thomas said. "We've had too many farms plans to deal with. We have the Brannan plan, the Gore plan, the Anderson plan and the Aiken Act."

CIO Doubts Reds Can Get Union Control

By the United Press

CIO sources yesterday doubted that the forthcoming showdown with left-wing unions would result in a new separate American trade union movement controlled exclusively by Communists.

But they admitted it is a possibility and they link the defiance of the CIO left-wingers to the Communist Party's world-wide attempt to weaken national economies and embarrass democratic governments.

These officials see the showdown—scheduled at the CIO convention at Cleveland October 31—as typical of the Communist strategy that split the Finnish, Italian and French labor movements and led to such costly strikes as those among Australian coal miners, Canadian seamen and Hawaiian longshoremen.

The CIO's left wing unions have called a meeting in New York Tuesday to chart strategy for a fight against both the CIO right wing leadership in the New York State CIO convention September 8 and the Cleveland convention.

Unionists signing the call of this "conference on autonomy and democracy in the CIO" represent chiefly the small bloc of the 11 labor organizations which have consistently opposed national CIO policy since 1946.

Ellender Seeks 65c Minimum Pay

By the United Press

Senator Ellender (D., La.) revealed yesterday on the eve of Senate debate on the Administration's disputed minimum wage bill, that he will try to fix the wage at 65 cents an hour and tie it to future changes in the cost of living.

The bill would raise the present minimum in industries in interstate commerce from 40 cents an hour to 75 cents, and extend coverage to millions more workers.

Since the 75-cent minimum was approved by all members of the Labor Committee, Administration leaders are confident the Senate will accept it.

The Labor Committee recommended only one small change in coverage of the existing law, and that is not expected to win Senate approval.

Ellender will introduce an amendment to fix the minimum at 65 cents, a plan tried unsuccessfully in the House, which passed a bill establishing the 75-cent minimum. He would permit the minimum to go up to 75 cents or down to 55 in line with future changes in the Government's cost-of-living index.

Senate Votes Today on Rider To Make Truman Economize

By the United Press

Senate Administration leaders yesterday rallied their forces for a last-ditch effort to defeat a proposal which they said would pass the responsibility for reducing Government spending from Congress to President Truman.

Both Democratic leaders and Senate economy advocates agreed the outcome will be touch-and-go. The proposal is in the form of a rider to the 15-billion-dollar military spending bill, on which the Senate is scheduled to vote at 2 p. m. today.

The rider would require the President to hold all Federal spending 5 to 10 per cent below his January budget estimates, which totaled about 42 billion dollars. At the same time, he could not cut any Federal activity more than 20 percent.

Scott W. Lucas (Ill.), Democratic leader, who has termed the proposal unconstitutional and unwise, said he thinks "We have the votes to defeat the rider." Senator Taft (R., Ohio), GOP policy chief, was confident the rider would get a majority vote, but he did not know whether the vote would carry.

Under Senate rules, at least two-thirds of the Senators present on the floor must vote for the rider.

Her Mother Is Missing . . .

The Washington Post

NOW IN MARYLAND—Sherry Bean, 10 months old, has been in the care of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Schmitz for seven weeks. She was placed with them by a Falls Church woman with whom her mother left her. The mother was identified as a Mrs. Dorothy Bean when the Schmitzes called on District welfare authorities to find her. The couple live in Kensington, Md.

Bean Baby Not Available For Adoption

Mrs. R. E. Schmitz wants everybody to know they can't borrow, beg or adopt the tiny, 10-month-old baby girl she's caring for.

Mrs. Schmitz, who lives at Kensington, Md., yesterday received so many telephone calls and so many visitors wanting to take the child she could hardly get her housework done.

"The child is not up for adoption," she said. "Nor is anyone going to take the child except its mother or someone having court sanction."

What Mrs. Schmitz is trying to do is find the mother who left the child, Sherry Bean, with a friend in Falls Church about seven weeks ago.

The Falls Church friend became ill and Mrs. Schmitz agreed to take the child and care for her along with her household of four, Mr. and Mrs. Schmitz and their own two children.

The baby's mother's name was given as Mrs. Dorothy Bean.

Mrs. Schmitz's efforts thus far have brought no trace of the mother.

If the child were up for adoption, said Mrs. Schmitz, she and her husband would adopt her themselves, because they have become so fond of her.

She needs to locate the mother to get information about the child's care—about formulas, inoculations, etc., so she can better take care of her.

Governmental Job Total Put At 6 Million

By the United Press

More than six million persons now are employed by the Federal, State and local Governments at monthly salaries totaling $1,340,000,000, Census Bureau figures showed yesterday.

They revealed also that some 1,950,000 employes will be left on the Federal payroll after the firing order handed down by Secretary of Defense Johnson last week is carried out. There now are about 2,089,000 Federal employes.

Johnson last week ordered 135,000 civilian jobs abolished in the Army, Navy and Air Force within four months. He said it would save the taxpayers 200 million dollars in the 1950 fiscal year and 500 million dollars a year after that.

According to the latest Census Bureau records, about half all public employes work for local governments, including cities, counties and other Government bodies below the State level. These workers numbered 3,034,000, of which 1,347,000 were school teachers or were employed in other capacities by the public school system.

On April 1, this year, the most recent date for which figures are available, State Governments employed 982,000 persons, an all-time record. About a fourth were employes of school systems.

A recent Census Bureau report said "a steady rise in State and local Government employment has been in evidence for some years."

Big Counterfeit Ring Hits New York With Bogus Bills

London, Aug. 28 (U.P.).—One of the biggest international counterfeiting networks in history was reported today to be flooding New York and South America with bogus bills printed on plates Adolf Hitler ordered made to enrich his wartime overseas sabotage funds.

Scotland Yard indicated hundreds of thousands of faked dollar bills have been passed by the vast ring whose members may include both international criminals and former Mayfair society playboys "now living in luxury in the south of France."

More than $120,000 worth of forged United States dollar bills have been recovered in little more than a week in Austria and Switzerland. Scotland Yard indicated it is on the trail of other huge caches.

Goethe Birth Date Honored By Library of Congress

The 200th anniversary of the birth of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe was observed here yesterday with a program sponsored by the Library of Congress and American University.

Approximately 300 persons attended the program at the library and heard John L. Allen of the National Gallery of Art read a paper prepared by Dr. Max Lederer of the library staff, and Miss Betty Jane Nutty sing Goethe lieder.

The program honoring Goethe, poet, philosopher, statesman and "universal genius," was opened by Paul F. Douglass, president of American University. At the conclusion, John G. Frank, professor of German at the university, led a tour through the exhibition of Goethe material on display.

The library has extended the exhibition until September 15.

GIs to Get Refunds on Insurance

About 146,000 Washington area World War II veterans who hold or have held national service life insurance for three months or more may start filing claims for refunds today.

On the national scale, some 16 million other former GIs are eligible for about $2,800,000,000 in refunds.

The amount each veteran will receive is based on the face value of his policy, the length of time he kept it in force and his age when he took it out.

The VA expects to start sending out checks by the first of the year.

Forms are available today at post offices, Veterans Administration offices and headquarters of veterans' groups.

The form for the dividend is a three-part card. The first contains instructions. The middle contains nine spaces which must be filled in with essential data. On the third part the applicant prints his name and address.

Forms also may be picked up at the Washington VA regional office, 1825 H st. nw.; the main VA office, Vermont ave. and H st. nw., and the Veterans Information Center, 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

They also can be had at the D. C. Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, 1319 K st. nw.; American Legion, 2337 15th st. nw.; at individual Legion posts; Disabled American Veterans Headquarters, 1701 18th st. nw.; American Veterans Committee Clubhouse, 1751 New Hampshire ave. nw.; American Veterans of World War II clubhouses at 1142 18th st. nw. and 1536 Connecticut ave.; American Red Cross chapters at 1730 E st. nw., 4112 Hamilton st., Hyattsville; 4711 Highland ave., Bethesda; 709 Cameron st., Alexandria; 433 Lee blvd., Arlington, and at Falls Church.

Royalty Entertains Douglas' Daughter

Balmoral, Scotland, Aug. 28 (AP). Sharman Douglas, who has been hobnobbing with Princess Margaret in northern Scotland, went away today to hobnob with Princess Elizabeth in the south.

The blonde, 20-year-old daughter of United States Ambassador Lewis Douglas wound up a 10-day visit at Balmoral Castle, where Margaret, King George and Queen Elizabeth are vacationing.

She left by automobile for Drumlanrig Castle, near Thornhill in Dumfriesshire, 100 miles south of Balmoral, to visit the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch.

Princess Elizabeth and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, will be there at the same time.

Olney's S. Syrjala Is Housing Expert

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE OF THE WEEK: An architect who saw 13 of his drawing board sketches come to life in a bit over three months would be a justifiably proud man and tomorrow night will find Sointu Syrjala in just that position . . . You've seen him billed as "Sets by S. Syrjala" on the Olney Theater programs and you may even have glimpsed him striding about in front of Olney at intermission time, a blondish man just approaching the rotund shape, small of eyes, largish of mustache . . . Serge's settings for the Olney's triple stage have caused more comment than settings generally do and I've watched many an Olney patron seek out his advice on their own "shelter" problems . . . Serge is particularly astute when it comes to whipping up modern design, homes where the posh may be obviously at their wealthy ease . . . Particularly fetching, for instance, was a gray-brick treatment for Kay Francis' weekending in "Let Us Be Gay." . . . His period setting for "The Heiress" certainly had a Washington Square quality, which doesn't surprise a reporter who came across him last winter in a Gotham apartment not far from Henry James' original setting . . . For his thirteenth assignment of the season—and I don't think Serge is a superstitious man—he goes back to the Victorian days on the other side of the Atlantic—the Barrett's home on Wimpole Street . . . Born in Canada of Finnish parents, (his grandfather was a famed Finnish painter), Serge broke into Gotham stage designing via the Provincetown Playhouse 18 years ago . . . Personally, Serge is a bit shy, but observantly witty, a quality that insinuates itself into his always editorialized settings . . . General Manager Dick Skinner and Co-Producer Evelyn Freyman have done some smart things at Olney, but one of the smartest is surely the ever-reliable set design of S. Syrjala.

JANE COWL will be back with us this week, but on the screen . . . This will be at the Capitol in "Once More, My Darling," a modern comedy with Robert Montgomery and Ann Blyth . . . As Bob's mother! . . . This is quite a shift for the clever Cowl, who has faced the facts of age reluctantly . . . Her last stage appearance here was in "The First Mrs. Fraser," a glamorous role in which she looked remarkably fit and played will all her skilled finesse . . . Now she's accepted Hollywood and the 60s and I'm decidedly of the opinion Miss Cowl will have as distinguished a new career as her long, honorable stage life . . . Yes, there's something about Miss Cowl and her many visits to the Hay-Adams always have given that hostel a special air of glitter for this admirer.

WILLIAM GILLETTE, the late, is in the news over in Baltimore this week where his play of 1896, "Too Much Johnson," is being turned into a Hilltop Theater musical . . . G. Wood, who composed "Saturday," is the words and music man for Gillette's famed vehicle, which opens Tuesday night and plays through next Sunday . . . Don Swann, jr., the Hilltop producer, points out that this is his theater's eighteenth production of the summer season . . . Yes, Gillette is the man who put "Secret Service" and "Sherlock Holmes" on the stage and in retirement used to break regularly into the news with his fabulous toy railroad on his Hartford, Conn., estate.

TWO POPULAR players of stage and screen celebrate a reunion tonight on the open air stage of Meridian Hill Park, Nancy Coleman and John Beal . . . Nancy broke into theater via San Francisco radio, in which she amassed $1000 and set out for New York . . . John Golden gave her the break of Hollywood-bound Nancy Kelly in "Susan and God," which led the second Nancy to a Hollywood career in "King's Row," "The Edge of Darkness," "Dangerously We Live" and "Mourning Becomes Electra." . . . Before the latter though, she joined John Beal to costar for the final New York year of "The Voice of the Turtle," in which the two re-appear tonight at Meridian.

JIMMY CAGNEY, who broke away from the tough guy roles that brought him fame in 'Public Enemy," "G-Men" and "Angels with Dirty Faces," will be back to his old gun-blazing this week at the Warner . . . His vehicle is "White Heat," released by that same studio for which he played those early thugsters, the Brothers Warner.

SEVERINO MONTANO, the young Philippine-born professor of theater arts at American University, sees a dream come true tonight . . . Dr. Montano has directed Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" for an "arena" open-air staging on the lawn in front of the university's Clendenen gymnasium . . . Experienced in films and plays in Manila and the Far East, Dr. Montano came to America to work at Gilmore Brown's Pasadena playhouse and from there to Yale's drama workshop . . . He's one of the most thorough students of ANTA and its background I've ever met, having completed a richly documented thesis on the history of the American National Theater and Academy, for which he was awarded his doctorate in public administration . . . "Our Town," which will run through Thursday evening, is his first production at American University.

Andrews Base to Have Carnival on Thursday

Andrews Air Force Base personnel will conduct a "Day of Thrills" carnival on Thursday for the benefit of the Air Force Aid Society and local benefits. It will be held on the athletic field and the hangar line at the base.

The carnival will run from 1 p. m. through the evening. A major feature will be the selection of "Miss Andrews Field," to be crowned in the evening.

To Speak on Japan

Mrs. Grace K. Llewellyn, an assistant prosecutor in the Japanese war crimes trials, will tell the weekly meeting of the American Public Relations Club today what she thinks the likely future impact of what she saw in Japan will be on the United States. The meeting will be held at the Hotel Sheraton at 12:15 p. m.

GONE NATIVE: Doris Potts, 900 Hamlin st. ne., is one of the Washington performers in Gene Ford's "Going Native" revue now on the Capitol stage. In the musical's finale Doris does a "gourd hula" and a mighty lively sight is Doris

Greeks Report End Of Grammos Drive

Athens, Greece, Aug. 28 (U.P.).—The Greek general staff announced tonight the Grammos Mountains campaign has been "completed," but reliable sources said the vast majority of 5000 Communist rebels there had escaped to Albania or infiltrated into central Greece.

The general staff communique, the second today, declared "the last important position has been captured" and the mountain campaign was over.

The early communique said Greek soldiers, with fighter bombers, had taken the guerilla strongholds on 8000-foot Mount Grammos and had cut off the Rebels escape routes to Albania. It said many prisoners were taken.

Government officials admitted later it was not known yet how many guerillas were trapped. But reliable sources said the rebels have reestablished themselves in the Tzoumerka and Souli areas of central Greece which the army "mopped up" before it launched its Vitsi and Grammos offensives.

The rebels also have penetrated near Larissa, informants said.

Villagers east and west of the provincial capital of Yannina (Ioannina) again were reported fearful of guerilla attacks.

Slovaks See New Attack On Church

Banska Bystrica, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 28 (U.P.).—Communist President Klement Gottwald and other high-ranking officials entered this Catholic stronghold today to commemorate the ill-fated Slovak uprising against the Germans in 1944.

They were well-guarded by thousands of security police and soldiers toting tommyguns who swarmed throughout all of Slovakia.

A grim and silent crowd watched the president lay a wreath on the Banska Bystrica monument which marks the last stand of the Slovaks against the Nazis.

Church sources in Slovakia believe the government's concentration on this area may be the signal for a renewed offensive against Roman Catholicism. Gottwald is to make a major speech at Zvolen Monday.

A typical Communist speech was given by General Svoboda, who commanded Czech forces in Russia during the war.

He declared the West double-crossed the Slovaks in 1944.

But, he said, Stalin sent Soviet Marshal Koniev's army from the eastern front to back the uprising.

Rudolf Slansky, hero of the uprising and now secretary general of the Communist Party, predicted Marshal Tito will be "kicked out by his own people" and that the "masters of the West" will meet the same fate as Hitler and Mussolini.

Justice Minister Alexei Cepicka accused Archbishop Josef Beran and his bishops today of attempting to "organize a subversive network for espionage and sabotage."

But Cepicka said broad-scale legal action against the Czech Catholic clergy would not be necessary because "only a handful" is following the Vatican.

Powers Asked To Fight German Anti-Semitism

Paris, Aug. 28 (U.P.).—An American expert on Jewish affairs said today that a "deep, underlying hatred against Jews" still exists throughout Germany.

Harry Greenstein, United States Jewish affairs adviser in Germany and Austria, called on the occupation powers to use "vigorous and militant means" to combat anti-Semitism in Germany.

Addressing a special session of the European Executive of the World Jewish Congress here, Greenstein said:

"No one can work in Germany for even a brief period without being conscious of the deep, underlying hatred and hostility against the Jews which exists on all levels of life."

Red Coal Miners Set For 250 Million Tons

Moscow, Aug. 28 (AP).—Soviet coal miners promised Prime Minister Stalin today to fulfill the five-year plan by next December. They said they would be producing in that month at the rate provided in the plan for 1950—250 million metric tons of coal annually.

(The output of the United States is more than twice that.)

Mt. Ararat Climb Begun

Dr. Necati Dolunay of Turkey's education ministry, two Army captains and two interpreters went along.

"It is this year or never," Smith said. "I know the ark is there. Now is time to prove it."

Several others had intended to accompany the expedition, but were not on hand when the climb began.

Ark About One-Half Size of Queen Mary

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—Noah's Ark, which five Americans are seeking on Mount Ararat in Turkey, measured about half the size of the big liner Queen Mary, according to the Bible.

In the book of Genesis, Noah was directed to build an ark in preparation for the flood. He was told: "The length of the ark shall be 300 cubits, the breadth of it 50 cubits, and the height of it 30 cubits."

A cubit is 17.58 inches, making the ark, 439½ feet long, with a beam of 73¼ feet and a height of 44 feet.

The liner Queen Mary, one of the world's largest, is 975 feet long.

Biblical historians generally set 2348 B. C., as the year the Ark made its trip.

Rankin Offers Truman Debate On Civil Rights

By The Associated Press

Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) said yesterday he will be glad to meet President Truman in a debate on what Rankin termed the "communistic" civil rights program, if the President goes South to speak on the issue.

Rankin said "I note President Truman's threat to come South and discuss this question. If he does, I shall be glad to debate it with him—especially if he comes to Mississippi."

He added in a statement:

"I am not disturbed about these attempts to browbeat Southern Congressmen into submission by threats of patronage reprisals. I would not vote for that crazy program for all the patronage in Washington."

Reds Unleash New Finnish Strike Today

Helsinki, Finland, Aug. 28 (U.P.).—Communist-led metal workers prepared today to unleash a new strike Monday as a climactic blow to the wave of Red walkouts which has crippled Finland for 10 days.

The planned strike of pro-Communist metal workers was in defiance of the Social Democratic majority in the metal workers union—the largest in Finland, with 50,000 members—which rejected an industry-wide walkout.

Premier Karl Fagerholm said the metal workers' strike was planned by the Communists as the most severe blow in their current drive against his government.

A government communique today on the investigation into the striker-police riots at Kemi 10 days ago, which resulted in two deaths, said the clash was percipitated by strikers.

Army's Role In Occupation Of Japan Dips

Yokohama, Aug. 28 (U.P.).—Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, Eighth Army commander, said today American troops in Japan have relinguished most of their occupation duties and are now concentrating on reaching "a high level of combat effectiveness."

Walker described the change in the role of United States troops here on the fourth anniversary of the Allied landing in Japan.

He said this was in accordance with Gen. Douglas MacArthur's "expressed intention to shift more and more responsibility to the Japanese government."

Walker said that by the end of 1949 the Eighth Army civil affairs team will have been absorbed by general headquarters agencies or by government organizations.

1950 Assembly

Several respectable reasons support the apparent desire of the Latin-American countries to have the 1950 session of the United Nations General Assembly held somewhere other than Flushing Meadow. By 1951, the permanent headquarters of the United Nations in New York should be ready for occupancy, and no doubt the General Assembly will convene there regularly thenceforward. This year's meeting is to be held at Flushing Meadow. Next year, therefore, will afford the last logical chance to meet abroad.

It was generally agreed that some extremely valuable results flowed from holding the 1948 session in Paris. European press coverage was augmented, and the people of western Europe felt more closely identified with the work of the United Nations. No doubt there would be similar benefits from a meeting next year in one of the Latin-American republics. Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires have been suggested as suitable sites. Bogota and Mexico City could well be added to the list of possibilities. The principal drawbacks, so far as these locations are concerned, are, first of all, that they may not be able to provide adequate physical facilities for so large a convention and, second, that in all of them the cost of living is now excessively high.

This latter consideration might make selection of a Latin-American site unfortunate from the point of view of delegates from some of the smaller European nations, or, for that matter, from most of the member nations. But these are difficulties which it may be possible to surmount. At any rate, the proffered hospitality of the Latin Americans deserves the most careful and sympathetic consideration.

Steel Arguments

There has been a decided change in the attitude of labor regarding the need for accelerated expansion of the steel industry. A few months ago Philip Murray, head of the Steel Workers Union and CIO president, joined the chorus of critics who were saying that steelmaking capacity was insufficient to maintain a high level of prosperity and employment. However, Robert Nathan, who provides the union with the arguments used in backing demands for wage increases, abandoned this line of attack in the current hearings before the Steel Fact-Finding Board. He now says that the tendency of industry to overexpand productive facilities in boom times instead of sharing its prosperity with workers (that is, increasing wages) helps to bring on depressions.

An element of truth, as a matter of fact, is present in both theories. For underexpansion retards economic progress, while overexpansion entails wasteful use of labor and capital, and results in industrial losses that spell unemployment. The problem that confronts industry is how to maintain a sound balance between expenditures required to keep existing production facilities in operation and outlays for new facilities. Under our system of free enterprise those decisions are the responsibility of the managerial heads of business concerns. The heads of the steel industry had to make such decisions and in the light of recent events it is evident that they were wise to resist the pressure to step up expansion at a time when materials for steelmaking and manpower were scarce and the industry was having difficulty maintaining full utilization of existing facilities.

Moreover, as The Washington Post pointed out in an editorial of January 7, there were even then signs of a slackening demand for steel—a warning signal to go slow. This and earlier cautionary statements in defense of the steel industry's policy appearing in our editorial columns brought grieved and sometimes angry protests from readers. We believe, however, that subsequent developments have justified our position.

The adjustments following a business boom stimulated by abnormally high postwar demands have been accompanied by a moderate recession that every farsighted industrialist must have foreseen. The result has been a sharp drop in demands for steel and declines in the industry's capacity from more than 100 per cent in March to only 82 per cent in June. Since then there has been a slight upturn.

No wonder spokesmen for the steel union have found it expedient to forget their former demands for an expansion of steel facilities. However, they still maintain that the industry can increase wages substantially and continue to earn high profits; even at much less than full operating capacity. To that argument the industry replies by citing statistics showing the sharp declines in earnings resulting from the recent drop in steel production.

The Peekskill Riot

The three hours of rioting at Peekskill, N. Y., Saturday night, between a force of veterans and a group of Communists and fellow travelers from New York, was bad business and a very dangerous symptom. It suggests a somewhat belated revival of the vigilantism which followed the First World War. By what appears to have been either a happy accident or the happy consequence of the New York State law which prohibits the sale of firearms, neither side possesssed any weapons more deadly than clubs, stones, bottles and a few knives. Thus out of the hundreds engaged in the fighting, only two seem to have been very seriously hurt.

The occasion of the riot was the announcement that Mr. Paul Robeson, the celebrated Negro baritone, was to sing at a concert at the Peekskill picnic grounds for the purpose of raising money for the Civil Rights Congress, the front organization that wages the legal battles of the Communist Party. An editorial in the Peekskill newspaper urged local residents to boycott the concert; but the Council of Veterans' Organizations decided that more drastic action was necessary. Its plan was to spoil the concert by having the members march up and down before the picnic grounds and drown out the voice of Mr. Robeson with the music of their bands. Evidently the council overestimated its powers of discipline, for as the marchers drew near the concert platform they broke ranks and, after some fighting, captured it by storm. Then they proceeded to set fire to the place, and to overturn or otherwise damage the automobiles in which the visitors had arrived.

It is hard to say which side is more to blame for this disgraceful and ominous episode. The choice of such a community as Peekskill for such an affair seems to have been asking for trouble, which, however, may well have been the reason it was chosen. Again, there is the fact Mr. Robeson in the last few months has made himself wholly obnoxious to all good Americans, including those of his own race, by his repeated disparagements of his native country and his fulsome glorification of Soviet Russia. In this, of course, Mr. Robeson may be merely parroting a line prepared for him by the Cominform; at any rate, since he has refused to deny that he is a Communist, he is open to the suspicion. As it happened, Mr. Robeson never turned up for the concert at all. According to a statement by the executive secretary of the congress, the singer was warned of trouble en route, and thus, as it was said, saved from "possible lynching."

All the same, it appears that the Communists are more pleased than indignant over what happened. It has given them an opportunity to complain shrilly about "storm troopers" and to renew their propaganda line that the United States is rapidly heading into a new brand of Hitlerism. Thus the veterans who opened the riot, whatever their motives, were actually playing the Communist game.

As for the leaders of the veterans' organization, we might suggest that the creation of situations likely to be productive of violence is hardly the highest form of patriotism, especially at a time when suspicions and hostilities among minority groups have grown tense. The Communist program, of course, is to fan these animosities wherever possible. But the aim of organizations which profess to put the good of the country first should, it seems to us, be just the opposite.

Pension Scandal

Mr. Ezra Van Horn has been drawing a $35,000 salary as trustee of the United Mine Workers' pension fund while acting as chairman of the bituminous coal operators' negotiating committee. It is strongly suspected that Mr. Van Horn's recent resignation from the latter post was brought about by pressure from operators who realized the impropriety and possible danger to themselves of his attempt to serve two masters whose interests often conflict. In our opinion his misguided efforts to act in a dual capacity is a reflection on his character which should disqualify him for service as a fund trustee as well as a representative of the operators in contract negotiations.

Moreover, it appears from Mr. Van Horn's testimony before a Senate Banking Subcommittee that he is an impotent minority of one on the three-man board of trustees. For practical purposes, he says, the pension fund has been operated by the other two trustees, Senator Bridges and John L. Lewis, in total disregard of his opinions. He also alleges that during the last two years he has been unable to obtain pertinent information about fund operations from the other trustees or the director of the fund. Under the circumstances, there is all the more reason for concluding that Mr. Van Horn's services are not worth the money paid for them.

As a witness, however, he has performed a valuable service by exposing the dictatorial methods employed in administering the pension fund. His revelations emphasize the need of protection against one-man control by John L. Lewis, with the aid of a subservient trustee—Senator Bridges—who, according to Mr. Van Horn, always supports the union leader. Evidently the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act which were designed to safeguard the administration of pension funds have failed of their purpose in this instance, and need to be strengthened.

As to Senator Bridges, it is a criminal offense for any member of Congress to receive payment for his services with the intention of having his votes or decisions influenced on any question that may come before either house or any committee of Congress. However, the law requires proof of intention to sell influence. This might be impossible to demonstrate against Senator Bridges. All that the Senate can do in the circumstances is to pass a resolution requesting Mr. Bridges to resign his trusteeship or at least refuse further compensation and return past salary payments. We hope that in the public interest this disciplinary action will be taken.

Moreover, the disclosures regarding the UMW pension fund underline the need for stiffer regulatory legislation to prevent a repetition of the kind of abuses uncovered by the current committee investigation.

Acheson And Judd

The charge that Secretary Acheson falsified the record on China is all of a piece with the disingenuous propaganda of the aid-to-China school. It was on a par with the underhanded Navy-cum Van Zandt attempt to besmirch the Air Force command. Representative Judd alleged "suppression" by General Marshall of a military report in 1945 on the Chinese Communists. This was supposed to show that the diplomats acted against military advice. Since when, one may ask, has this civilian-run country been condemned to take military advice? In any event the advice, retorts Secretary Acheson, was not written for the State Department, and is therefore not part of the State Department record. However, he seems to have made it his business not only to get a copy but also to have copies of the copy made for the newspaper reporters. And, lo! and behold, the document does not live up to Mr. Judd's summary, but turns out to have been in line with State Department policy, not opposed to it.

No doubt the White Paper does not contain everything that was written by all American officials and all American officers reporting from China. Such an encyclopedia would probably occupy twice as many pages as the 1000-page White Paper. What the public is entitled to know is whether it gives an honest review of Administration policy, the documentary evidence back of it, and the papers expressing it. Thus defined the White Paper seems to us, without going bail for it, to be a plain tale of one of the unhappiest episodes in the Nation's foreign relations.

There is explanation, but not exoneration. The White Paper does not change our opinion, for instance, about the bad work at Yalta, though the explanation of why the Chinese were not told of the deal right away—namely, out of fear that the Japanese would be informed—is well founded. Even the trustful United States Navy intelligence, which ran Operation Friendship in China in wartime, is now aware that secret intelligence relayed to Chiang Kai-shek's head of the secret service, Tai Li, was re-relayed to the Japanese with the same facility which marked the consignment of American arms through the Nationalist lines to the Chinese Communists. Some explanations merely explain, but don't persuade. For instance, the fact that Russia could gobble up Manchuria anyway is no reason for anticipating the theft by making it legal. However, the record is a praiseworthy aid to public knowledge.

What is not praiseworthy is the postmortem effort to keep up the smearing of the State Department when the delicate situation in the Far East requires a united quest for a sensible American policy. Don Quixote is the hero of the White Paper, but he is equally the hero of the congressional critics of the State Department. And the critics are the more culpable because, with the benefit of the White Paper, they ought to know better. This is something apart from the impropriety from the public point of view of calling the sincere public servants who are administering China policy knaves as well as fools—a more or less daily practice that goes back to 1945. Sooner or later, the country will find that no man with any regard for his reputation let alone his career will touch a job having anything to do with China with a 10-foot pole.

LONE DRAKE

Three days I have seen him alone
On the pasture pond at dawn,
And the scattered flocks have flown
But the drake stays on.

I cannot remember the sound
Of a shot in the pasture here—
There was shooting all around
Again this year!

He is not wounded, I know—
I have not seen him trace and retrace
The sky . . . as if below
He had marked a place.

Cold is the wind through the reeds
And the sky is cold and gray.
What can there be that he needs?
Why must he stay?

He turns to gape at the sky,
Watching still for his mate
And listening for her cry
Though the hour grows late.

"Greek Cleanup"

As you state in your August 19 editorial, the victory of the Greek national army against the Communist guerillas is in sight after three years of fighting. The Vitsi stronghold has been mopped up, a large part of the Albanian border has been sealed, and the Greek army is preparing its last attack against the Grammos Mountain salient which is manned with the remnants of the rebel forces. The result can not be anything else but the cleaning up of the last rebel salient, and the termination of organized rebel action.

To the Greeks, exhausted from the war, this result means returning to peace and reconstruction after a decade of continuous war. To the Americans, according to your editorial, this smashing of the guerilla resistance means that less money will have to be appropriated to Greece under the Truman Doctrine.

Not only that, however. It also means a triumph and vindication of the Truman Doctrine, a strengthening of the American policies that grew up from the Truman Doctrine and resulted in the Marshall Plan and the North Atlantic Pact, and the preservation of a heroic strategical outpost of the democratic world.

Criticism Of England

Like the British, I have become a little tired of our criticism of England. It seems almost as though we are happy to find her in dire straits. It gives our own Tories the opening they so dearly long for—to find a country that is attempting socialism and which is in difficulty. Right or wrong, the blame will fall on socialism.

A continuous howl is set up against taxation of the English people. Assuredly taxes are biting into the pocketbooks of the English. But where else is capital to be obtained? In the United States, under free enterprise, capital is likewise obtained solely from the pocketbooks of the people—not in taxes but in profits.

There is no magic in capitalism that enables business to conjure up capital. It is socialist taxes vs. capitalistic profits and no more. All dynamic economies are capitalistic, and they must be if they are to grow. All capital without exception must come from the people. It is only as to who should administer this capital that there is disagreement. The argument against taxes is simply not valid.

Another common criticism of the Labor government is that the workers are lazy and inefficient, producing only about one-half the work our workers produce. Here again is an actual fact all dressed up to prove that socialism caused this condition. It is true that output per man in England is lower than in the United States, but no one will honestly admit that the reason is simply that the English worker has about half the machinery horsepower. It was English capitalism that was to blame for this lack of machinery—not socialism.

The Socialist government is spending eight billion dollars this year for the needed horsepower to assist its workers. All factors included, this eight-billion-dollar expansion program would be equal to a 50-billion-dollar program in the United States.

On top of these silly arguments we are prone to forget that any comparison between England today and the United States today must include the effects of the war. Whereas our country felt no destruction of industry, England lost a large portion of hers. Also a comparatively larger proportion of the working force was lost by England than we lost.

Were it not for the fact that another war looms dark on the horizon, there is little doubt that England would have suffered from our anti-Socialist attitude. But I presume that Socialist blood is not so inferior that it would not mix with Tory blood on the battlefield.

Alcoholic Blood

Your August 23 issue contained a report from Philadelphia that the president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union had urged blood banks to stop buying blood from persons who would use the money to purchase liquor. Perhaps subconsciously influenced by this item, as well as by newspaper stories and radio appeals, I made a too-long-deferred visit to the District Red Cross Blood Donor Center yesterday to contribute a pint of my own blood to the blood bank.

What I saw and learned there explains the readiness of the hospitals to engage in the traffic which, to the WCTU, seems to be so reprehensible. The facilities of the center are far from being utilized at full capacity, though run by pleasant and efficient personnel. One of the nurses informed me that the bank had that morning been unable to answer a call for blood of a particular type without calling on one of the nurses for an immediate donation. Obviously, when blood is necessary to save the life of a patient, the hospital cannot afford to inquire too closely into the motive of the vendor in offering it.

Later it occurred to me that this situation offers a marvelous opportunity for the good ladies of the WCTU to strike a blow for the cause of temperance, and at the same time help save lives endangered by the lack of readily available blood. Let them come forward, individually and severally, and give their blood through the medium of the Red Cross Blood Donor Centers.

When ample supplies of pure, strictly nonalcoholic blood are available, free, the clinics and hospitals will be relieved of the odious necessity of purchasing blood from persons motivated by the unworthy desire to obtain money for the purchase of alcoholic beverages. Thus the source of the money used by these persons will be reduced, if not altogether cut off, by the action of the ladies of the WCTU.

Transit Radio

In her August 21 letter I note that Vera E. Adams is going all out on a campaign to free her fellow transit riders from the cruel grip of exploitation. I wonder if Miss Adams was ever caught in the rush-hour traffic when one is compelled to stand in one spot as one of many sardines, with nothing to look at except the colorful transitads.

It doesn't take long to read those; then there is nothing to do but to listen to the radio—if you're lucky enough to get on a car with one of those "exploiters." Except through letters to the editor, I have yet to hear criticism of the soothing music, the well-modulated voices of the announcers and the clear reception.

Excommunication

"Why has the Pope suddenly excommunicated Roman Catholics who are tainted with communism when he failed to excommunicate the Roman Catholics who were full-fledged Nazis and Fascists, including Hitler (according to Who's Who in Germany at the time), Goebbels, Von Papen and most of the high officials in the Third Reich, also Mussolini and his henchmen?" Someone has asked this question, and it is a vital one, for these men were arch traitors to the whole race.

Why was a concordat made with Hitler by Pope Pius XII, while he was Papal Secretary, and which he has insisted must be maintained even to this day, while Nazi brutality was rampant in Europe and thousands of people were being put to death in lethal chambers? This was common knowledge, and so the above question becomes a very grave charge against the Vatican.

Surely some explanation should be forthcoming, for if the Pope had acted as strongly against nazism and fascism as he has against communism the chances are that we would not have had the Second World War with all of its death and destruction and heart-rending horror.

"High Cost of Bombing"

From reading the first two columns of Stewart B. Barber's "The High Cost of Strategic Bombing" in your August 18 issue, I gather he hasn't spent two or three years in the hot, disease-infested Pacific, fighting Japs who didn't know they had been defeated at Saipan in June, 1944, and kept on killing soldiers and sinking ships.

Apparently the Jap air force didn't know its oil supply had been cut off at Okinawa and kept sending up hundreds of planes a day to kill marines and sink our ships. There is no point in a long-drawn-out war in an area where 20 per cent of the casualties were disease-inflicted.

The remainder of the article talks about cutting Russia's supply lines and starving her for two or three years in event of war. What if she doesn't realize in the first six months of war she's being systematically starved and closed off from her sources of supplies, and with her reserve supplies knocks out Pittsburgh, Detroit, New York and Washington with A-bombs and sets us up for invasion from Alaska?

"Cavalleria Rusticana"

In his August 10 review of the San Carlo performance of Cavalleria Rusticana, your critic boldly asserted of this opera that its music was "cheap" and its plot "sordid." The critic asserted that this opera should be "buried now and forever." Any lover of good music will certainly disagree with such statements.

Had the criticism been limited to the poor performance given by San Carlo Opera Company, I would have agreed fully with its harshness; but, how can anyone utter such monstrosities about the music of Mascagni? It is not to be forgotten that this opera has always achieved great success in all countries, and that it has always aroused great enthusiasm, not only among music amateurs, but especially among music experts.

The plot of Cavalleria is best described as human rather than sordid; after all, similar events occur in every-day life. Can your critic dispose Shakespeare's Hamlet on account of the ignoble marriage between King Claudius and Gertrude? A. G.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Asia—Summing Up: IV

ONE CONCLUSION appears reasonable to the traveler returned from a journey of political observation around the world. This is that American foreign policy, both in Europe and in Asia, is now faced with failure. The danger is not apparent here, because Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder and other Administration advocates of business as usual are sitting on the crisis, like so many nervous hens hatching time bombs. Yet it is important to try to understand what is happening.

The first danger is in Europe. Unless bold countermeasures are taken, the British are now expected to go bankrupt within the next six to 18 months. This means the end of Britain as a great power. And this means in turn the destruction of the whole painfully built western front of resistance to Soviet aggression.

The British reaction to the threat of bankruptcy is already apparent. It is, first, to try to erect an autarchic economic system within the sterling bloc, insulated against the United States and the rest of the world. It is, second, to cut British commitments abroad to the bone.

And it is, third, to make barter deals with the Soviet Union and the Soviet sphere.

As final bankruptcy approaches, these reactions will be intensified. The attempt to insulate Britain from the United States will in itself rupture the Anglo-British partnership which is the strategic basis of American policy. With British economic and strategic commitments cut much further, the long arc of British power, stretching from Hongkong through Asia and the heart of Europe to the British Isles, will begin to crumble. Finally, the cry for political as well as economic deals with the Soviets, already heard on the British Left, will become much louder. One can almost read the editorials in advance: "Our choice—Yank bombers on British soil or Russian wheat in British mouths."

IT IS BRITISH POWER, married to American power, that gives meaning to all the plans for the defense of western Europe. From the Truman Doctrine to the military aid program, the basic purpose of American policy has been to give Europe confidence, and thus strengthen the center against the extremes of Right and Left. Already the cut in M. A. P. has weakened this confidence. The disinegration of British power will destroy it at a stroke.

The result in France, for example, is sure to be a general running for cover. De Gaulle will gain on the right, and the Communists on the left, while the center pursues an "understanding" with the Kremlin on almost any terms. The same pattern holds for all Europe. With Britain down, Europe will become a sort of mush. The Russians, whose great rearmament effort is already nearing completion, will need to use, not force, but the mere threat of force to consume the mush. This is why the best expert estimates appear to be that it will require only about two years to produce another world war if Britain collapses as a great power.

On the other hand, the process which is now going on in Asia will require a longer time, although it is equally sure to end in war if it is allowed to continue indefinitely. This process amounts to an attempt to create a new greater East Asia coprosperity sphere, this time under Soviet auspices.

China is almost gone. The next target is southeast Asia, which was also Japan's target after the conquest of China was almost complete. After Southeast Asia, the objective is Japan itself, as the major Soviet efforts to train Communist shock troops of repatriated Japanese soldiers so clearly suggest.

IF SOUTHEAST ASIA goes, Japan should not prove a difficult target, unless American troops are to hold Japan indefinitely by brute force. China and Southeast Asia comprise Japan's whole natural trading area, and economic pressure alone could be enough ultimately to bring Japan into the Soviet sphere. With Japan's industrial potential added to the great riches and hugh population of Southeast Asia and China, and the whole area under Soviet control, a vast upset in the world power balance will have occurred. It is worth recalling that we fought a long cruel war with Japan to prevent such an upset in the balance of power. It is also worth recalling that Japan was not a European power, and the Soviet Union is.

All this need not happen. It will not happen if the United States faces the alternatives. The power, the wealth, the energy and the ingenuity of this country are sufficient to meet and overcome the crisis now confronting us. One alternative is to make the necessary extra effort, with the realization that this effort may be like an insurance policy which must continue for a long time. The other alternative will be to avoid all effort and sacrifice, and continue business as usual. And this will be precisely like grudging the money for fire insurance with a powerful arsonist loose in the district.

Diminishing Resources

Congratulations on Herblock's cartoon of August 25! Perhaps it must take just such a "comic" picture of the world's diminishing resources, and population increasing at a dangerously rapid rate—so startlingly and realistically portrayed in William Vogt's Road to Survival and Fairfield Osborn's Our Plundered Planet—to get rid of the complacency of so many of its people.

Thank you and Herblock for your honesty in recognizing this fact.

Murray Disclaims All-Steel Bargaining

By The Associated Press

Philip Murray, president of the CIO Steelworkers Union, said yesterday that industry-wide bargaining in the steel industry is "industry's creature—not the union's."

The CIO issued a statement here—Murray is president of the CIO as well as the Steelworkers—in which Murray replied to testimony by steel company executives last week before a Senate Banking Subcommittee headed by Senator Robertson (D., Va.).

These executives asked for curbs on the power of the big unions, including the steel workers. Ben Morreell, president of Jones & Laughlin, said restriction of industry-wide bargaining may be needed. Luke Sawyer, of Babcock & Wilcox Tube Co., protested what he called the union's practice of imposing on the smaller companies the wage settlements it makes with the large basic steel firms.

Murray said Senator Robertson and his committee have "behaved with gross impropriety in injecting themselves" into the current steel dispute, concerning which a presidential fact-finding board has been holding lengthy hearings in New York.

Steel Demand Upturn Reported Continuing

Cleveland, Aug. 28 (AP).—The upturn in demand for steel continues, said the magazine Steel today.

Contributing to the trend "are completions of inventory reductions. A conviction there will be no immediate steel price cuts, and an improvement in some fields, notably the household appliance industry," the trade journal continued.

Russia 'Menace'

Briton Sees Tito Dispute As Dynamite

Greenock, Scotland, Aug. 28 (U.P.).—Hector McNeil, Minister of State, today described the Soviet-Yugoslav dispute as "international dynamite."

He said the Cominform campaign against Marshal Tito has not been equaled in viciousness and bitterness since the German propaganda offensive of 1939. He described Russia as a "menace," and a "disturber of the peace."

In a speech in his own constituency here, the Laborite minister said:

"I don't think that anyone is planning for war against Tito, but anyone taking part in this campaign is playing with international dynamite.

"Rumors of Russian troop concentrations against Yugoslavia, which, I must say I don't believe to be accurate, are being permitted dissemination by the Soviet authorities who normally are vigorous in their censorship of any reference to Soviet troop movements."

McNeil recalled Russia's warning that she will resort to "more effective" measures to remove Tito from power.

"This sinister, and yet unexplained, threat was backed up by the most violent press and radio campaign which Moscow has conducted since the war.

"Such a campaign, always dangerous and morally inexcusable, is inept at this time, when Soviet Russia poses as a champion of peace."

Gravel Strike Slated Today

spokesmen said would be equivalent to a pay raise of about $1 a week.

Union officials said that under contracts with the two unions, which expired recently, the Smoot company has been paying wages ranging from 58 cents an hour for cooks to $1.32 for top-grade workers, such as welders, blacksmiths, dredge captains and crane operators.

The average hourly rate for all employes is just under $1, they said. Time and a half is paid for work over 40 hours, and workers are guaranteed 51 to 55 hours of work, union spokesmen said.

While Federal Conciliator Richard Goodrick is expected to try to get the two sides together for another parley early this week, officials of both sides said the strike today was apparently inevitable.

Walkout of the two unions three years ago shut down the Smoot firm's operations for seven weeks and tied up several million dollars in District construction and repair projects.

The employes involved are 135 operating engineers, including all river crews and shipyard mechanics and repair men, and about 40 members of the Teamsters Union, who work as truck drivers, warehousemen and helpers in the yards.

Smoot dredging operations are carried on in the Potomac River between Alexandria and Mount Vernon, Va., on both sides of the river. The company, whose offices are at 3020 K st. nw., has a plant and machine shop nearby and a shipyard and repair shop in the Southeast.

Engineers Notify WTOP Of Contract Termination

Thirty-two union technicians employed by radio station WTOP have notified the management their contract has been terminated, leaving them free to strike at midnight Wednesday.

The technicians, members of Radio Broadcasting Engineers Local 1215, AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, are asking for across-the-board pay increases and three-week vacations.

The local voted strike authorization two months ago, and a walkout Wednesday night is a probability unless a satisfactory offer is made before that time, L. J. Holt, business agent, said yesterday.

Wage scales now range from $62.50 to $125 a week for the technicians, who receive two weeks paid vacations under the old contract.

The contract expired last May 27, and negotiations have been carried on with John Hayes, station manager, since April 15, Holt said. The old contract was continued during negotiations, with a provision it could be terminated by either party on five days' notice.

Such a notice was given by the union last Friday, Holt said, and the members will be freed from a no-strike clause in the contract at midnight Wednesday.

Holt said the technicians' take-home pay has been considerably reduced in recent months because overtime work has been cut down.

Fairer Sex Called Menace

have convinced him that the female of the species is deadly behind the wheel for perfectly good a.d logical reasons.

Many of them, he has found, stem from vanity and habits of dress.

The National Safety Council has not yet come out against the offside hats on display for fall, but Fletcher regards them with alarm.

They'll Be Crawling

"A lot of women in pretty hats," he predicts, "are going to be crawling out of the wreckage wondering why they didn't see the other car in time.

"Nothing obstructs vision like a hat with brim, feathers or flowers coming forward over the ear and eye. Statistically speaking, some fashionable hats are horse's blinders."

Fletcher is an admirer of the hobble skirt—after office hours. Professionally he abhors tight dresses.

"A tight dress," he says, "makes it difficult, if not impossible, to turn the body enough to see properly in all directions.

"Frills also can be dangerous. Frilly sleeves can hook into the door handles and make our pretty friend lose control of her car. They also get tangled up in the gear shift."

It is not that Fletcher prefers women in overalls. When he objects to refinements of feminine dress it is because hats, dresses, lace—all have been causes of ugly accidents.

If a woman plows through a few stop signs it is not necessarily because her think-tank leaks. Fletcher's long experience has convinced him that she probably is wearing the wrong kind of shoes.

Shoes for driving should be flat. For all its ingenuity, Detroit never has designed a pumpkin coach suited to Cinderella's slipper.

"A high narrow heel may turn over when a woman hits the brake or the gas," Fletcher says. "Or it may slip off the pedal entirely."

Or for evening attire, Fletcher believes women drivers should wear light-colored gloves or none at all.

They Wear Dark Gloves

Intelligent women are losing their driver's licenses every day because they drive in dark gloves at night. There is an accident. The motorist behind swears she gave no signal for a turn or stop. She swears she did.

Actually, she is telling the truth. She gave the correct signals but her hand was invisible at night in its dark glove.

Other women find themselves filling out insurance forms because they do not dress warmly enough for driving, Fletcher has discovered.

Instead, in cool or rainy weather, they keep the car window rolled up tight, or else inch it down a crack or two in order to wriggle three pinkies through it for a hand signal.

The fingers wagging so daintily, and so inadequately, do not mean the lady is just being cute or stupid, Fletcher says. She is only trying to keep herself warm or dry.

"Wear a coat," is his blasphemous advice, "even if it doesn't match the rest of your outfit."

(Tomorrow: Fletcher's opinions on girls who wear glasses.)

Woman Says Pshaw to Men

en drivers are more careful. Why, my 18-year-old daughter is the best driver I know."

Judge Bosone says she has been driving since she was 15. How long has she been driving? You don't ask a lady questions like that.

"I was brought up with three brothers, no sisters," she says. "I've worked with men all my life. I don't see any difference between men and women in ability and emotions."

One of her brothers tried her patience when he complained to her about women drivers parking cars. They stop at a parking space, back in, pull out, move on to another spot, back in, pull out and then repeat the performance again, her brother said.

"That's because women are more cautious and budget-minded," Judge Bosone reasons. "When they pull into a parking space, maybe they see that it'll be a tight fit and their fenders are apt to be bumped. The woman driver translates that into dollars and cents. The man driver doesn't."

Of the hundreds of traffic cases that have come before Judge Bosone, she does not remember one in which the offender was a woman. It might be pointed out here that the Congresswoman was a pretty stern judge. Second offenders got a stiff fine. Third offenders got no fine. They went to jail.

If women drivers are open to criticism for occasionally letting their eyes stray to a shop window, Judge Bosone finds men equally guilty of ignoring the road ahead for a peek at a shapely limb.

"Just yesterday," she says, "I was driving downtown and saw a man driver making a left turn. He was a good-looking fellow, too. And he had his head stuck out of the window watching a pretty girl. Wasn't watching where he was going at all."

Then she remembers the case in Salt Lake City involving two men drivers. One had pulled his car to the side of the highway and another car had smacked into him.

There was no traffic on the road, and it was puzzling how the accident had come to happen. Judge Bosone kept questioning the two drivers and finally got the answer. Both drivers, it developed, were absorbed in watching a woman as she bent over to pick up her wash.

Just a day ago Judge Bosone was driving to her office. As she approached an intersection there appeared another car, also driven by a woman. Both stopped. Both waited several seconds for the other to proceed. No hurry to get by the other driver. Finally, one of the drivers took the right of way.

"I wonder," said Judge Bosone thoughtfully, "what would have happened if that had been two men drivers."

When she speaks publicly, Judge Bosone usually includes an anecdote about the drunk driver who appeared before her.

He appeared once, he appeared twice. When he was brought before her for the third time on a drunk-driving charge, the drunk, still soggy with liquor, squinted an eye up at Judge Bosone and roared:

"What, you here again!"

New Anti-Tito Moves Hinted

meeting of the Cominform military committee were maneuvers in a war of nerves.

Foreign Minister Edvard Kardelj and Mitvan Djilas, member of the Yugolsav Politburo, found time in the prevailing calm to attend a track meet of Yugoslav, Belgian and French athletes.

Tito apparently still was at his summer capital on the Adriatic resort island of Brioni.

The government here has denied officially within the last 36 hours rumors there are "unusual troop movements" and that sabotage caused the oil refinery fire at Fiume.

Bulgarian officials in Sofia refuse to confirm that a meeting of Cominform country military officers is going on there. But they told Western diplomats who asked about it that an important announcement would be made shortly.

Ana Pauker at Meeting

The Cominform parley apparently started several days ago when the Bulgaria Hotel, leading hotel in Sofia, was sealed to all foreigners who normally use it.

Strict security measures were taken in the area of the hotel. Militiamen with Tommy guns patrol the streets and stand guard on surrounding rooftops, advices said.

Colonel-Generals of the Russian, Romanian, Hungarian and Polish armies have been seen entering and leaving the hotel, but none has been identified by name in advices received here.

There were numerous conferences among Western diplomats during the weekend, with resulting reports to the State Departments and Foreign Offices in Washington and elsewhere.

World Bank Group To Visit Turkey On Loan Study

By the United Press

A five-man mission of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development leaves for Turkey soon to inspect three projects on which the Turkish government is seeking a loan.

The group, headed by G. Stewart Mason, bank loan officer, will arrive in Istanbul September 12.

The Turkish government has requested a loan to finance grain storage facilities, port construction and improvements and flood control, irrigation and power projects.

West German, Soviet Unity Group Planned

Bad Godesberg, Germany, Aug. 28 (AP).—Rudolf Nadolny, former German Ambassador to Moscow, said today a permanent organization will be set up to work for unity between Soviet-occupied and western Germany.

The decision was taken at a meeting of about 20 German industrialists and political figures, he told a news conference.

In the thick of questioning, Dr Andreas Hermes, former German Minister of Agriculture, cut the conference short.

Dr. Konrad Adenauer, possible chancellor of Germany's first postwar government, had advised Germans against attending the meeting on the ground that such movements alienate the Western Allies.

Asked whether his group's goal of German unity is not the same as that of Soviet propagandists, he said it is but that the movements are entirely separate. Nadolny declared he has no connection with the Soviet government.

He said the American taxpayer is not going to support Germany forever and Germans must therefore direct their own efforts toward unity.

British Cabinet Weighs U. S. Appeal Plan Today

London, Aug. 28 (AP).—The British cabinet will meet Monday to pass on a plan for easing the nation's money headache.

The plan is outlined in a 15-page brief compiled by Treasury, Foreign Office and trade experts.

It lists proposals it is thought will help Britain recover. It also asks the United States to give a little more help, too.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Ernest Bevin, Foreign Secretary, will carry the plan to Washington for financial talks with American and Canadian representatives September 7.

Bevin and Cripps sail Wednesday aboard the Mauretania.

Here's what the brief proposes:

It would bind both the British government and industry to cut down working costs and raise productivity.

It suggests ways in which Britain can earn more dollars by selling more and cheaper goods.

It asks the United States to liberalize both tariff policy and tariff administration.

It calls for an American promise to buy fixed amounts of basic commodities from the British-led sterling area at fixed prices for fixed periods.

It proposes swift, joint working out of President Truman's "fourth point" for developing backward areas of the world where the British pound is used.

Brother of Lyssenko, Famed Red Scientist, Granted Right to Come to U. S. on DP Quota

Berlin, Aug. 28 (NYHT).—Pavel Lyssenko, distinguished Soviet scientist and brother of the famed and controversial Soviet geneticist Dr. Trofin Lyssenko, has just become one of the first prominent postwar refugees from the Soviet Union to emigrate to America.

After four years of living in the American zone of Germany under a false name and in constant terror of enforced repatriation to Russia, Professor Lyssenko and a number of other distinguished refugees from bolshevism, including a well-known atom scientist, last month sailed for the United States after being accepted on the displaced persons quota.

Their emigration was sponsored by the International Rescue and Relief Committee, officials of this agency confirmed here today.

Their departure marked a distinct liberalization of American policy against emigration to the United States of recent refugees from the Soviet Union.

The Russian chemist, whose specialty is fuels, first came to Germany from the Ukraine in 1943 when he was brought here as a slave laborer to work in the laboratories with German scientists.

Dr. Lyssenko, who found time in his three and a half years of masqueraded living to perfect a method for converting inedible chestnuts into honey, is described as a timid nondescript looking person of middle weight.

He told the refugee committee that "I could not return to Russia for two reasons. It is impossible to work freely and without fear and thus science is handicapped. And it would be doubly impossible for me to continue my work, for the Soviet Union is full of suspicions of those who came to Germany and worked during the war and had the chance to get a glimpse of western culture and standard of living."

His ambition is to acquaint American industry with his experiments in chemistry, coke and iron making.

Yanks Win 2; Henrich Hurts Back, Feared Out for Year; Schroeder Trounces Sedgman, Retains Davis Cup for U.S.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

WHEN BASEBALL COMMISSIONER CHANDLER granted general amnesty last June to the exiled American ball players who had jumped to Mexico, he announced loftily, "I am tempering justice with mercy." After three years, he was ending their five-year banishment from organized baseball.

At the time Chandler decided to extend mercy to the group he was in the position of a man with three guns pointed at his head. Three of the exiles, Pitchers Fred Martin and Max Lanier, and Outfielder Danny Gardella, were taking dead aim at him with damage suits totaling $2,800,000, charging that baseball was a trust operating with illegal contracts.

POVICH

It wasn't Chandler who got organized baseball into that mess. When he read the Mexican jumpers out of the game for five years, he was merely following precedent set by the late and esteemed Commissioner Landis. The club owners applauded Chandler's action and were loud in their comments of "serves 'em right." They believed it had closed the book on the jumpers.

And then, late last year came that suit for $300,000 damages by Gardella. In the early spring, Lanier and Martin engaged legal talent and sued for $2,500,000 on the same grounds that they were victims of an illegal boycott by organized baseball.

CERTAIN of the club owners began to cringe at that point and beseeched Chandler to settle with the plaintiffs out of court. Chandler brushed them off and took complete charge of baseball's defensive tactics. He hired a famed antitrust lawyer, John Lord O'Brien, and by-passed baseball's own legal counsel. He told the club owners he would carry the ball.

When Chandler suddenly announced that he was lifting the ban on the jumpers last June, it was his own doing. He hadn't hinted to the club owners his action in advance. It was a smart move calculated (1) to appease the suing players or (2) to minimize the amount of damages they could collect.

Chandler's thinking clicked quickly. Two of the three litigants, Lanier and Martin, accepted the welcome to return to their club, and now organized baseball had them in the fold again, in a position at least where they could be talked to in a friendly spirit.

The upshot in their cases was that over last weekend, they withdrew their suits. Cardinal Owner Fred Saigh patted them on the back and praised their "generous attitude." Organized baseball was out from under the threat of the heaviest damages.

CHANDLER'S OFFICE and the whole structure of baseball may be breathing easier this week, but the toughest obstacle still lies ahead—Gardella's suit. Despite the fact that Gardella's claim of damages was modest compared to the demands of the other pair, it is the Gardella suit that is giving baseball it's most panic. His suit is different.

Baseball's lawyers liked their chances to win the court actions against Lanier and Martin. There could be some merit to the claims that the two ball players weren't going to court with clean hands. They had jumped their contracts in midseason, in May, voluntarily. Gardella had violated only the reserve clause that binds a player to his club between seasons. He had not signed a contract.

Thus far, Gardella has been adamant in refusing to drop his suit. He has taken the position of a crusader determined to expose the reserve clause as an illegal document in restraint of trade and in violation of the antitrust laws, and he is beginning to look like a tough plaintiff, the one with the best case of all and the suit baseball would most prefer to see dropped.

THE GARDELLA case is, in fact, getting critical. Federal Circuit Court Judges in New York expounded on the high importance of the case and jumped it over hundreds of others on the docket to set the trial for mid-October. If Gardella is upheld, and baseball is ruled a trust, or interstate commerce subject to Federal regulations, then it could mean turmoil for the game.

Gardella's attorneys are ready to introduce evidence that organized baseball with its interstate broadcasts and television is interstate commerce. That's another worry for Chandler's office. And the game's position in the Gardella suit has been aggravated by the evidence that the New York Giants once took steps to have Gardella fired off a semipro team. Implied was the threat that all who played with or against Gardella would be subject to organized baseball's boycott.

The Giants thus messed it up all the more for Chandler, the man who must direct baseball's defense. Chandler settled the Mexican situation amicably for American baseball, and he brought Cuba, too, into the organized baseball fold. The Gardella case is the toughest nut he has had to crack, though. And it's almost time for decision—not his, the courts'.

49ers Defeat Colts, 31-17

San Francisco, Aug. 28 (U.P.).—After a feinted fling, little Frankie Albert shot down the sidelines with a zing today to save the faltering San Francisco Forty-Niners from disgrace and hand them a 31 to 17 victory over the Baltimore Colts in their All-American Football Conference season opener.

The Forty-Niners jumped to a 17-0 lead by half-time, but then crumpled and the score was tied at 17-17 as the last period began. Then Fireball Frankie used his head and his legs to shove his team back in front of the fray. It was third down on the Baltimore 29 when he took the snap from center. Calmly he waved his potential pass receivers on—and the Colts, figuring on a desperation long pass, faded back.

That left their forward defenses full of holes, and Albert sped down the sidelines to the eight-yard line before he was smashed down. From there big Norm Stanlee crashed over for the touchdown which pulled the game out of the fire.

Gonzales Turns Back Sidwell in 2d Singles

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—Extinction, quick and painless, came to Australia's Davis Cuppers for the fourth straight time today, with Ted Schroeder's rapier-like racket the lethal weapon.

The volatile ace from La Crescenta, Calif., played some of the finest tennis of a brilliant career as he overwhelmed Frank Sedgman, the blond, 21-year-old Australian champion, 6—4, 6—4, 6—3, in the deciding match of the challenge round at Forest Hills.

His surprisingly one-sided win, achieved in only an hour and five minutes before 10,000 in the sunbathed stadium, gave Uncle Sam the third victory needed to retain the big international trophy and stilled Aussie hopes, which had been high after their triumph in yesterday's thrilling doubles contest.

Gonzales Routs Sidwell

It also turned into a tame anticlimax the closing match, in which Pancho Gonzales, another fierce swinger from the West Coast, terrorized Billy Sidwell, hero of the doubles, by scores of 6—1, 6—3, 6—4, to make the final count 4—1 for the United States. That one lasted an even hour.

The two easily-won victories only emphasized the absence of any real Davis Cup competition since the war. Since the first post-war challenge round at Melbourne in '46, the Americans have won 16 straight singles matches—seven of them by Schroeder. They have lost only two doubles while winning the same number.

Sedgman's failure to give Schroeder a real battle in the decider surprised everybody—except, possibly, the feather-footed American. After all, the handsome young Aussie had carried Ted to five hard sets this summer at Wimbledon and had twice reached match point in that tussle.

But today he never really had a chance against his court-wise 28-year-old opponent. Never relaxing on a single point from his rip-tearing attack, Schroeder clawed his way to the net ceaselessly and applied such pressure that Sedgman finally went almost completely to pieces toward the end.

Three Successive Points

The final set saw Schroeder win five of his six games without loss of a point—three of them in succession. He scored 12 placements to the Aussie's four and gave Sedgman only 16 points. It was a massacre, and the crowd scarcely had the heart to cheer when it ended.

It is doubtful that Schroeder ever played better tennis, especially than that he displayed in the final set when he knew he had his man. He had looked forward to another crack at the lad who almost upset him at Wimbledon, and he made the most of it.

All that need be said about Gonzales was that he looked every inch the killer that Schroeder did. If the big Mexican-American meets Ted in the final of the national championships on Labor Day the stadium will not be a safe place for women and children.

Probably dispirited by Sedgman's loss, Sidwell did not produce quite the fiery game he displayed in carrying Schroeder to five sets in the opening singles match on Friday. But he still was a pretty good bundle of tennis, and it was Pancho's "big" game which never gave him an opening.

Nats Trounce Browns, 13-2, Then Bow 4-3

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 28.—The Washington Nationals displayed one of their best hitting attacks in weeks this afternoon as they slammed out 18 hits to subdue the Browns, 13 to 2, in the first game of a twin bill at Sportsmans Park. However, Southpaw Bill Kennedy turned them back on seven hits as the Browns slipped home in the finale, 4 to 3, to retain a one-game grip on their seventh place quarters.

Ray Scarborough merely coasted to his tenth victory against as many defeats in the opener, scattering eight hits.

In the first game, Brownie Pitcher Karl Drews was replaced after he faced only three Nats. After he departed, Eddie Robinson and Clyde Vollmer each hit his fourteenth homer; Eddie, Clyde, Al Kozar and Buddy Lewis each winding up with three hits.

Nats' Rookie Dick Weik was off to a shaky start in the nightcap, giving up three runs in the second inning on Sherm Lollar's two-run homer, a walk to Johnny Sullivan, a hit by Pitcher Bill Kennedy and Weik's wild throw to first.

The Nats tried to overcome the Browns' 4-1 lead in the eighth inning, but could get only two runs on singles by Sam Dente and Al Evans and a double by Sam Mele.

Jackie Tells Own Story

Robinson Grateful For Rickey's Help

By JACKIE ROBINSON
(As Told to ED REID)

ONE of the biggest factors in my success with the Dodgers has been the encouragement and constant advice of Mr. Branch Rickey, sr.

Mr. Rickey always had me in his office in the early days of my association with the Dodgers. He was ready with fatherly advice for every situation.

Robinson

A very religious and tolerant man, Mr. Rickey was always predicting things that were going to happen. He would gauge public opinion quite accurately almost 100 per cent of the time.

He told me just what I had to expect when I first joined the team and as a consequence I was always ready for anything that came up.

Mr. Rickey was like a piece of mobile armor and he would throw himself and his advice in the way of anything likely to hurt me. It was wonderful having his help and guidance. He is with me and the rest of the ball players right down the line.

Another helpful influence has been Burt Shotton, the manager of the team. He is a fatherly type and the younger fellows on the team always look to him for advice with which he is always ready

I THINK that the Dodgers have an unbeatable combination and that we will win the pennant this year. As far as I am concerned there are not too many problems left in baseball, except probably one, and that is in regard to an adjustment, upward, in my pay.

Neither Rachel's family nor mine were ever too well off, as you know. Most of the help we have been able to provide has gone to my family, and I am happy to say that we don't have to send them much any more. Right now we are concentrating on saving money for a rainy day.

We have moved to Queens, next door to Brooklyn, where there is a little more room—a bigger backyard—for Jackie Junior. I figure that I have about three or four more years in baseball and I hope to lay away enough in that time to take care of us comfortably.

Every time I talk to my friends about retiring in about three or four years they hoot at me and tell me that it will take many more years than that to put me on the shelf.

All I can say is that they just don't know what chasing that little white ball can do to a man's legs.

Oh, if I can stay in baseball longer than I figured, that will be O. K. Don't get me wrong, I don't want to have to quit in three or four years. If I can stay in baseball a longer time, I will.

I AM anxiously thinking about the time when I can settle down, after my baseball days are over, and really go to work in Harlem with kids who need the help and guidance I think I can give them.

I don't mind saying that the proposition I have in mind will need a sponsor with plenty of money and faith. I propose a place where needy and underprivileged kids can come to do the kind of things they like to do. I do not mean regimented activities, that come off at stated hours, activities that you HAVE to engage in. I mean a place where a kid can go and do the kind of thing he likes to do. Play basketball, baseball, badminton—or do shopwork, making anything from a salt shaker to a desk.

I think that is the secret in dealing with kids, giving them the things they like to do—not telling them what they must do. You can't drag kids in off the street, you've got to attract them.

I think that my success and the success of other Negroes in organized baseball has encouraged me in the belief that things are looking up for the Negro in the United States. I believe that there are seven Negro fellows in the major leagues right now and I think that more will come in.

I do not believe that Negroes are better athletes than whites. I believe, however, that more Negroes will show up in places of importance and responsibility as the prejudice against them wanes.

BELIEVE me, it is on the wane right now. We have shown them that there is no problem insofar as the Negro in baseball is concerned and I think that could be made to apply to any branch of business in the country.

I know that one of these days segregation will be wiped out. It may not be in my lifetime, but I get satisfaction in seeing many cracks in the foundation.

I'll never forget a rather dramatic incident that occurred in Georgia. We were scheduled to play two games, in Atlanta and Macon.

Mize Also Injured; Bosox Lose, Trail by 3

Chicago, Aug. 28 (AP).—The New York Yankees stretched their lead to three full games by sweeping a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox, 8-7 and 7-5 today. But the Yankees lost the services of Outfielder Tommy Henrich and First Baseman Johnny Mize because of injuries.

The second game was called at the end of the eighth because of darkness.

A crowd of 38,135 saw the Yanks stretch their lead over the second place Boston Red Sox to three games.

The veteran Henrich suffered a "serious" back injury when he backed against the right-field wall at Comiskey Park trying to field Charley Kress's first-inning double in the opener. At St. Luke's Hospital, it was disclosed that Henrich suffered "fractures of the second and third lumbar vertebrae processes, one of which is displaced."

A hospital source said that while the injury would not permanently incapacitate Henrich, it probably would end his playing for the season.

A hospital source said that while the injury would not permanently incapacitate Henrich, it probably would end his playing for the season.

Mize, recently bought from the New York Giants to plug the Yankee infield gap at first base, jammed his right shoulder sliding into first base in the first inning of the second game to retire Dave Philley after fielding his grounder.

The Yankees waged an uphill fight to win the opener, scoring six runs in the ninth to overcome a 7-2 Chicago lead.

During this spree against three Chicago pitchers, Joe DiMaggio hit his twelfth homer after George Stirnweiss opened with a pinch single. It was DiMaggio's first homer since August 11.

Vic Raschi, fifth of six pitchers who surrendered three runs in the only inning he pitched—the Chicago eighth—was the winning pitcher for his seventeenth victory.

In the second game, the White Sox outhit the leaders, 10-9, but trailed all the way.

Vern Stephens' Error Loses For Bosox, 2-1

Cleveland, Aug. 28 (AP).—Boston's Red Sox dropped a 2 to 1 decision to the Cleveland Indians today on an eleventh-inning bungle by Shortstop Vernon Stephens.

Then they got a life in the second game of a scheduled doubleheader when the umpires called it off because of darkness in the top of the fourth with the Indians leading, 2 to 0.

With one out, Stephens was trying to make a double play out of Lou Boudreau's grounder. But he dropped the throw to second and fired the ball home too late to catch Doby.

In that first game, after Thurman Tucker grounded out to Pitcher Jack Kramer, Larry Doby shot a double into right center, so Kramer purposely passed Joe Gordon to set up a double play.

Lou Boudreau obliged with a grounder to Second Baseman Bobby Doerr. Doerr tossed the ball underhand to Stephens to nail Gordon, but Stephens dropped the ball.

Doby Beats Peg

Figuring he had nothing to lose with a double play in the making, Doby steamed from second and never paused at third, dashed for home. Stephens recovered the ball and fired it home, but Doby's head-first slide beat it out for the winning run.

It was the fifteenth out of 16

'Skins Prep For Game With Lions

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

DENVER, COLO., Aug. 28.—A half hour after they arrived in this mile-high city, the Washington Redskins were undergoing a night workout in preparation for Tuesday's exhibition game against the Detroit Lions at Denver University Stadium.

A single injury had Redskin officials fretting, at least from a public relations standpoint. Bob Hainlen, fourth-string quarterback, had a pulled muscle in his right leg and it was feared he might not be able to punt or place-kick in the city where he often performed as a member of last year's Colorado A. & M. eleven.

On the strength of their 34-28 triumph over the Los Angeles Rams on Friday the 'Skins found themselves installed as 13-point favorites for Tuesday's game. Head Coach Billick Whelchel feared the effect of cockiness on his players.

ALTHOUGH THIS is his first year as boss of Washington's pros, Whelchel is aware of their dismal record in preseason games. Last year they came off an even more impressive victory over the Rams and took a thorough lacing from the Chicago Cardinals at Denver.

In last year's Ram game and a 1947 tiff with the Lions at Denver, as a matter of fact, the Redskins turned in their only victories in two years and eight exhibition games.

In spite of their 13-point underdog rating, Coach Bo McMillan's Lions are not being taken lightly by Whelchel and his staff. Together with the entire squad they looked at movies last night of the '48 clash with Detroit at Griffith Stadium and laid plans to avoid a recurrence of such an affair. In that one the Lions led going into the final period and lost out only because the 'Skins cooked up four touchdowns in 11 minutes at the end.

Gardella Plans To Press Suit for $300,000 Damages

St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, Aug. 28 (AP).—Danny Gardella, former New York Giant outfielder, said tonight "I have no intention of withdrawing my damage suit against organized baseball."

Gardella, suspended from organized baseball in 1946 by Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler when he went to the outlawed Mexican League, is suing for $300,000 damages. He claims he was deprived of a means of livelihood.

(Cardinal owner Fred Saigh announced yesterday Max Lanier and Fred Martin, former Mexican Leaguers who are back with the Cards, had agree to stop their $2,500,000 suit.)

G. and H. Nine Wins

Gallagher and Huguely defeated Lorton at Lorton, 4-1, yesterday as Mickey McCoy pitched five-hit ball and struck out 11 reformatory batters.

Max Lanier Wins 2d on 3-Hitter

Boston, Aug. 28 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals increased their National League lead to 2½ games today by twice defeating the Boston Braves, using their power for a 9-7 opening victory and receiving classy three-hit pitching from Max Lanier for a 7-1 decision in the closer.

The games were played before 24,941 paid fans, bringing the total Braves Field attendance for the season to 998,750.

Lanier had a one-hit shutout until after the first Boston batter had been retired in the final inning of the nightcap, as he pitched his best game since being pardoned for his 1946 jump to Mexico.

The Cardinals used homers for six of their runs in the opener when Stan Musial clubbed in three runs with his twenty-sixth of the season and Nippy Jones walloped his fifth and sixth.

Jones also walloped his seventh in the second game to wind up as high-run producer of the hot afternoon. He drove in five runs, three in the first game.

D.C. Netmen Draw Top Foes Today

Gil Bogley Will Play French Ace

By Jules Loh

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Six Washington D. C. tennis stars are among the 64 entries awaiting the start of the National Championships at the West Side Tennis Club here tomorrow.

Two-time junior champion Gilbert Bogley and Mid-Atlantic runner-up Charley Oliver suffered perhaps the worst luck of the D. C. entries in the draw.

Bogley's first round opponent will be France's Robert Abdesselam, seventh seeded on the foreign list. Oliver drew none other than Ted Schroeder, jr. top ranked U. S. player from LaCrescenta, Calif, who this afternoon whipped Australia's best, Frank Sedgman, in straight sets, clinching the Davis Cup for the United States.

Hippenstiel vs Patton

Capt. Robin Hippenstiel, Middle Atlantic titlist by virtue of a final round upset over Oliver last July, will square off with the University of Michigan star, Andrew Patton.

Virginia University's Hal Burrows, who qualified by wading through three rounds of competitio n in the preliminary round, will meet former Czech Davis cupper, Ladislav Hecht. Burrows is favored.

Representing the Washington contingent in the women's division will be Mrs. Ann Gray and Miss Charlotte Decker, both came up with favorable draws. Mrs. Gray, D. C. champ, will face Katherine Hubbell of Boston and Miss Decker will meet Nancy Morrison from Palm Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Madge Rurac, the Rumanian champ who disposed of all Washington competition in winning the Midatlantic women's crown, is pitted against 16-year-old Laura Lou Jahn, Coral Gables, Fla. A quarter-final match between Mrs. Rurac and Doris Hart, from Jacksonville, is expected.

Failed to Qualify

Three D. C.s Jim Thackara, Barney Welsh and Phil Neff were eliminated in the preliminary round last month.

The greatest collection of talent since before the war will be gunning for the title. Highlighting the eight-day court carnival will be the first appearance of Schroeder in U. S. titular competition since he won in 1946, and the finest assortment of foreign netmen in over a decade.

Included in the foreign field is the Australian David Cup team, Jaroslav Drobny, the self-exiled Czech Davis cupper, and Eric Sturgess, the South African who lost to Pancho Gonzales in last year's finale.

Sidwell Unable to Play In National Title Meet

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Billy Sidwell, Australian Davis Cup star, will not participate in the national championships which start here tomorrow.

Sidwell would have rated a third place seeding on the foregin scroll, but he must leave tommorrow for London on a business trip.

200 to Compete In Swim Meet

Washington's outdoor swimming competition draws to a close tonight at Takoma Park pool where a 10-event program, starting at 8 p. m., will feature eight District of Columbia AAU senior outdoor tank championships for men and women.

Some 50 men entrants, including Takoma's Lew Hedges, lone defending champion, are in quest of titles in the 100-yard freestyle, 220 breaststroke, 100 backstroke and the 400-yard freestyle relay.

On the distaff side a like number of entries will compete in the freestyle, breaststroke and backstroke, all over the 100-yard distance, and the 200-yard freestyle relay.

Deyoe Triumphs With Perfect 100

Glen Burnie, Md., Aug. 28 (AP).—George Deyoe of Washington, D. C., scored a perfect 100 yesterday to capture top honors in the .20-gauge class at the Maryland Open skeet shoot.

Ed Calhoun of Ocean City, Md., broke 48 targets out of 50 to take first place in the .410 class.

Deyoe followed his perfect string by teaming with John Dalton of Chevy Chase, Md., to tally 195 out of 200 and win the two-man team event in the .20-gauge class.

Brownell's 62 Shatters Course Mark

By West McLean
Post Reporter

In spite of Bobby Brownell's record-breaking 62 for Chevy Chase, Prince Georges won the Cloverleaf tournament yesterday at Columbia with an aggregate score of 294.

Chevy Chase was second with 301; Kenwood, third with 311; followed by Columbia, 320; Manor, 321; Congressional and Indian Spring, 322; Washington, 323, and Woodmont, 327.

Brownell got off to a slow start, taking a bogey five on the first hole but went on to birdie nine of the remaining 17 holes. He was under par on the second, third, fifth, sixth, eighth, twelfth, fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth, using only 27 putts for the round which he finished eight under par, 31, 31—62.

Ward Burgess, assistant pro at Chevy Chase, added a 68 to Brownell's great score but senior Bob Stead took an 87 while Dorothy Nicholson needed 84. Mrs. Nicholson started off badly, taking 47 on the front nine, but she came back in 37 for a very creditable 84.

Prince Georges pro, Al Houghton, posted a 68 and received able assistance from Mike Jankowski and senior George Voigt both of whom carded 71s. Voigt had one bogey and 17 pars in the round, missing 5 or 6 close putts for birds which wouldn't drop. Marie Walper rounded out the Landover club team with an 84.

ARGYLE—R. W. Kentner and A. J. Sicilano defeated Ray Medler and J. S. Backham, 1 up, to win the club two man team championship.

Frank Miller, Roger Martino and Frank Albasta carded 150s to tie for low qualifying score for the club championship which starts September 11.

WOODMONT—J. A. Peake, Lou Miller and Ellis Edlowitz tied with 68s for the Class A sweepstakes with the Class B honors going to Bobby Goldstein with 78—13—65 while Harvey Blumenthal's 88—18—70 won the Class C, and Class D went to Sol Kullen, 88—25—63.

CONGRESSIONAL—Bo McClellan, 260—51—209, won the 54-hole medal full handicap Treasurer's Cup with Dr. W. J. Evans, 234—24—210, good for second.

PRINCE GEORGES—John Jankowski won the low gross prize in the sweepstakes with a 77 while low net went to Jim Kinder, 72—1—771, with C. W. Curley, 79—7—72, and R. N. Fields, 86—14—72, tying for second net.

A 20-man team from Prince Georges played host to a similar team from Quantico and defeated the Marines, 15½-14½, in a best ball tournament.

MANOR—Merrill Whittlesey defeated J. R. Miller, seniors champion, 2 up, in the first round of the club championship. Other results: B. H. Burrows defeated L. F. Fuchs, 2 and 1; H. B. Deal defeated Dick Sturges, 2 and 1; W. S. Pounder defeated Tom O'Bryan, 6 and 4; A. H. Coolidge defeated D. E. O'Daniel, 1 up; Bill Griffin defeated M. J. Crawford by default; S. E. Andrews defeated Leo Shandis, 6 and 5; Carl Linder defeated L. D. Ritter, 1 up.

INDIAN SPRING—Joe Zekas and Eddie Ault advanced to the semifinal of the club championship. Zekas eliminated Allan Weisberg, 1 up, while Ault defeated Douglas Jackson by the same score. R. H. O'Malley cored an ace on the 135-yard fourteenth hole, using a No. 8 iron. He was playing with C. B. Hartman, Jim Huntt and Harry Gershenson.

BETHESDA—Mrs. Don Swain defeated Mrs. Kenneth Kuster for the ladies' championship, 3 and 1. Four down at the end of eight holes, Mrs. Swain squared the match on the fourteenth and then won the next three holes to annex the championship. In men's competition, Allan Sheirer, Tony Popolaski and Eddie Powell advanced in President's Cup play. Sheirer won from Bill Shaw, 7 and 6; Popolaski trimmed Al Sepuldeda, 2 up, and Powell sidelined Joe LaSalle, 1 up.

Bogart, Worsham To Play

Turnesa Opens Title Defense Today in National Amateur

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 28 (U.P.)—Four former United States champions, including Willie Turnesa, the present title-holder, will be among the select field of 186 competitors who tee off tomorrow in quest of the forty-ninth annual U. S. amateur golf championship.

Ralph Bogart, Washington, D. C., meets Joseph Tereskiewicz, Orange, Conn., in a first-round match today while Washington's other representative, 19-year-old Marvin "Bubby" Worsham drew a first-round bye and doesn't play until tomorrow. Worsham will face the winner of today's match between Charles Sawyer, Hopkins, Minn., and Robert Jacobson, Deal, N. J.

The three Baltimore players entered were paired as follows: William Cole meets Edward Martin, Winchester, Mass.; Edward Johnston meets Art Wall, jr., Clarks Summit, Pa., and Spencer Overton meets Fred Kammer, jr., Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., in first-round matches today.

Virginia's three entries, Wynsol Spencer, Newport News, meets Tom Burke, jr., Houston, Tex.; Burr Melvin, Newport News, meets Harry Moorhead, Louisville, Ky., and John Battle, Charlottesville, meets Charles Robinson, Nashville, Tenn., in the first round.

In addition to the four former United States champions entered, four former British amateur champions, including the present titlist, big Max McCready, are scheduled to compete along with members from the Walker Cup Teams of America and Great Britain.

The four United States champs—Turnesa, Skee Riegel, 1947 winner, Ted Bishop, winner in 1946 and the popular Chick Evans, who won in 1916 and 1920—along with hard-hitting Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, are regarded the "players to watch" over the rolling 6800-yard par-71 Oak Hills layout.

Cochell Wins At Seabright

Seabright, N. J., Aug. 28 (AP).—Defending Champion Earl Cochell of San Francisco won the sixty-first annual Seabright lawn tennis invitation tournament today by defeating Giovanni Cucelli of Italy, 6—2, 2—6, 6—0, 6—1.

Cochell, top-seeded, turned on the power in the third and fourth sets after losing his touch temporarily in the second. Forcing the play all the way, especially behind his crisp, accurate service, Cochell mowed down Italy's No. 1 player and Davis Cupster. The San Francisco star, who is ranked No. 6 nationally, apparently had saved his best tennis of the tournament for th efinal round, played before a small crowd in hot, sunny weather.

Ryder Cup Team Triumphs, 25-11

Belmont, Mass., Aug. 28 (AP).—Chicago's Lloyd Mangrum posted a four-under-par 67 for a 4-up victory over Toney Penna, of Cincinnati, today while pacing the United States Ryder Cup golf team to a 25-11 points triumph over Byron Nelson's challengers at the Belmont Country Club.

The internationalists, who piled up an 8-4 lead in yesterday's quartet of four-ball tests, won six of today's singles engagements.

Lombardo Wins Twice In Regatta

By Happy Walker

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 28.—Bandleader Guy Lombardo took two feature events and won the lion's share of applause, as the Maryland Yacht Club wound up its two-day Star-Spangled Banner Regatta here today.

In a thrill-packed eight-hour schedule, the second day of the historic labeled speed classic came close to being a marathon. There were 91 starters in 25 events.

In the smaller boat field, Joe Palmer, Washington's heavy-footed "Tommy Boy" driver, staged a brilliant return to his championship form, taking both heats of the 135-cu.-in. hydro class and the Charles F. Chapman trophy. Jerry Powell, Richmond, Va., took second place and 600 points, followed by C. Mulford Scull, Ventnor, N. J., 300 points.

Powell was not without his share of glory. He gunned his 225-cu.-in. hydro, Skedaddle, across the finish line in both heats of the Eastern Division Championship, ahead of Vinc Schwing, Baltimore, Md., and Earl Orme, Cambridge, Md. Powell hit the jack-pot again in the Maryland Gold Cup 225-cu.-in. open, with an impressive first and a very close second for 700 points, plus the coveted title.

The 48-cu.-in. hydro and runabout event saw 18 starters hit the line. Earl Hildebrand, Washington, D. C., managed a second in the hydro class in his Jo-Jo behind Jack Van Deamon, of Philadelphia. Jane Layton, in Yellow Jacket, Jr., took top honors in the runabout class followed ironically enough by her husband, Reese Layton, in Yellow Jacket, Sr. Myrle Russ, Norfolk, Va., took third.

Dr. Louis J. Novotny, Los Angeles surgeon, added two wins in the Pacific One Design class with Cherub II.

Another Washingtonian, Henry R. Lewis, drove his D racing runabout Miss Bluebird to a second-place. Lewis was headed by Frank Foulke in Sagana VIII.

THE MAN WHO

Adventists Name Dean

Miss Maybelle Vandermark, associate director of personnel and associate professor of religion at the Washington Missionary College at Takoma Park, has been appointed dean of women there for the coming school term.

The appointment was announced yesterday by W. H. Shephard, president of the Seventh-day Adventist institution. She succeeds Miss Minnie E. Abray, who served as dean of women there for 23 years, but who is now on leave of absence.

Miss Vandermark was graduated from the Washington Missionary College in 1932. She first joined the college staff as head of the student placement service in 1939. Later that year she became an instructor. She has served as assistant dean for several summers during the absence of Miss Abray.

Shooting Case Link Still Sought

Prince Georges County police yesterday were still trying to link the shooting of a Washington gambler with the earlier stabbing of a Georgetown businessman.

Detective Earl J. Huber, placed in charge of the investigation Saturday, said he was not convinced there was no connection between the events that led to the wounding of Bernard Del Negro, gambler, and businessman Samuel Ochs.

Del Negro, 37, was one of those arrested in raids on the headquarters of William (Snags) Lewis last March by District Attorney Morris Fay in Bladensburg as a result of which he is under indictment in Washington and in Prince Georges County.

Police were looking for a 38-year-old Washington man, whom, police said, Ochs described as his assailant. He told police his injuries were the result of a "friendly little misunderstanding between old friends," and has indicated he does not wish to prosecute.

Huber said Del Negro, according to witnesses, was shot as he passed through the swinging doors between the dining room and the kitchen of the Crossroads night club about 3:30 a. m. Friday. The bullet passed through the fleshy part of his legs above the knees. He is in Prince Georges General Hospital in satisfactory condition.

Huber said no one appeared to have seen the actual shooting or the assailant although four persons were back of Del Negro as he passed through the door.

Johnson Forecasts More Civilian Firing In Armed Services

Defense Secretary Johnson has made it clear that additional reductions will be made in the civilian staffs of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

A transcript of the meeting at which he announced the abolition of 135,000 civilian jobs in the military agencies was made available yesterday. The Secretary is quoted as saying:

"This cut (the 135,000) is about one seventh of the civilian staff. And there will be more cuts as the management committee looks at the unnecessary jobs throughout the whole establishment—Pentagon, field, everywhere."

When Representative Edith Rogers (R., Mass.) warned the Secretary "there may be a battle" on some of his firing plans, he answered:

"I think the American people will not support you in a battle. They know there have been people employed in defense who render not a nickel's worth of service for the defense dollar. That I will defend before America and the world. There has been terrific extravagance and waste and, so God help me, I pledge to stop it."

But a bit later when Representative Wolverton (R., N. J.) said it was hard for him to believe one out of every employes was a drone," Johnson quickly replied:

'Don't apply 'drones' to all. Drones implies that they were complete loafers. I'd like to give you the impression they weren't. There aren't any jobs for them to do. It is not a reflection on the men. Let's back away from the word 'drones.'"

Representative Tauriello (D. N. Y.) brought up a pertinent observation: "When we talk economies I am afraid we go to the lowest level and we always start with the poor little working man . . ."

Johnson assured him the reduction would hit all along the line, the big as well as the little fellows.

Representative Bennett (D., Fla.) said it was his impression Congress had in mind savings in hospitals, procurement and duplications of that kind when it enacted the unification law.

The Secretary agreed, saying: "The machinery for it is all set up. There is a medical committee that is clearing these hospitals, and all those figures are not included in here in any sense. There will be a complete study under Dr. Allen, who heads it, of the whole medical field.

"There is a like study going on in practically everything else. There have been unification orders issued that are secret that save money. The whole field, including this field, is the way I interpret my orders for unification."

Representative Kennedy (D., Mass.) urged Johnson and his staff to place additional work in the Navy Yards and award fewer contracts to private shipyards. He said: "You are keeping the employment in many of these private yards at a much higher percentage than you are in the navy Yards. Kennedy reminded the Defense officials that the Vinson-Trammel Act requires the Navy to put half its ships in its own yards.

Johnson assured him that private contracts had been cut back, but he added: "You would start us into an awful mess if we took business away from private shipyards."

The sharpest and perhaps the most effective criticism of the Johnson program was spoken by Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), who said in part:

"It is a little difficult for us to hear most earnest and solemn support for requested appropriations at one time and shortly thereafter to be advised that what they have previously presented had then been found to be unnecessary or untrue. It is difficult for me to believe that the 135,000 people that are to be cut off are not in some way going to impair the functioning or the effectiveness or the security of the United States of America.

"I have never been one of those who thought the sure way to political heaven or to a greater security in our country was to cut somebody off the public payroll

But the Representative who was speaking the thoughts of more than one person in the room was Boykin of Alabama, who said to Johnson: "I know you are earnest, you are right, and you are trying—you are the only one who had guts to do such a thing and I am going to back you up, except I wish to God you could leave me alone. That is exactly what every single one of us wishes."

Mother Holds Man On Phone For Police

Soldier Trapped On Calling to Tell Where He Left Car Reported Stolen

Mrs. Charles McGarvey, 2129 Tunlaw rd. nw., said she kept the man talking on the telephone for almost one hour, while police traced the call and raced to a telephone booth at Bolling Air Force Base. The suspect was arrested as he left the booth, police said.

According to police, Patricia McGarvey was parking her car in front of the house Friday night when a man arose from the back seat, pushed an open knife against her arm and ordered her to keep driving. The girl eventually escaped when the car slowed down for a traffic light.

The unidentified assailant telephoned the young woman Saturday to tell her where the car had been abandoned and made indecent advances, Mrs. McGarvey said. Police were alerted in case the man should call again.

Yesterday noon, Mrs. McGarvey said, the man called once more, this time to tell the girl that he would leave her billfold at a Georgetown drug store, but Mrs. McGarvey answered.

"He said that something strange came over him when he saw American girls," Mrs. McGarvey reported. "And he said he got that feeling when he saw my daughter. I advised him to see a Navy psychiatrist, or to confide in his mother, anything to keep him talking. My husband had run next door to telephone the police."

Police arrested the man outside the phone booth in Building D229 at Bolling and brought him to the Seventh Precinct station. There Mrs. McGarvey said she recognized the suspect's voice after hearing him talk to police detectives in a separate room.

Miss McGarvey is employed in the circulation department of the Washington Times-Herald where her father is employed as an electrician.

Sodium Palmitate Clarified

National Bureau of Standards scientists announced yesterday that the electron microscope had given them an easy method of discovering what a soap is and how it works.

As a result soaps and soapless detergents can now be evaluated scientifically rather than by texture, suds, scent, and action on human skin.

Soap removes dirt by forcing a film of liquid between the surface being washed and the dirt. The soapiness of soap thus depends on its ability to wet both the surface and the dirt, the bureau announcement said.

Electron micrographs showed pure soaps as an interlocked mesh of fiber bundles. Each pure soap exhibited unique, characteristical, structural arrangements.

Cab Driver Loses Taxi to 'Friend' During Snooze

Casey told Park Police yesterday he'd been cruising in his Diamond Cab Saturday with a "friend" known to him only as Smitty.

"The weather was so nice, police quoted Casey as saying, "that we decided to lie down for a little snooze in the grass." This was on Riverside dr., near the Lincoln Memorial.

Came the awakening and Casey found "Smitty" and the cab gone. Police are seeking the latter described as 32 years old, 5 feet 11 tall, weighing about 149 pounds and living in the 1400 block Newton st. nw.

In Industry

Women Secretaries Paid $56

Women secretaries in private industry here earn an average of $56.50 a week, according to the first survey of private office workers' salaries ever undertaken in Washington by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The secretaries, whose work week ranged from 38 to 40½ hours, were the largest group studied. Almost 8000 women are thus employed here, it was estimated in the report issued yesterday.

The next most numerous types of workers surveyed were women clerks and stenographers, who averaged $47.50 and $48.50 respectively.

The average earnings of secretaries and stenographers in private industry here were close to those of Government workers in similar jobs, BLS Regional Director Robert R. Behlow said.

The largest groups of male office workers in private industry studied were clerks, office boys and accounting clerks, who received average weekly salaries of $55.50, $33.50 and $49 respectively.

Where comparisons could be made, highest pay scales for the same types of work were in transportation, communication and public utilities industries, followed by tries.

The 40-hour, 5-day week, the same as for Federal employes, was the most frequent schedule reported for women office workers in Washington. Only 4 per cent of women in private industry worked more than 40 hours and less than 10 per cent worked more than five days a week.

Women office workers' salaries ranged from $33 a week for file clerks in retail trade, to $61 earned by hand bookkeepers in professional offices, the survey showed. The file clerks earned the lowest hourly rates of pay for women workers, 84 cents, while secretaries in public utilities had the highest feminine rate of earnings, $1.59 an hour.

Weekly salaries among male office workers here ranged from $31 for office boys in manufacturing industries to $70.50 earned by hand bookkeepers in wholesale trade firms, the BLS survey showed.

The survey, made in April, covered 364 establishments employing 17,000 office employes.

Men, Police Mix in Gory Free-for-All

About Everyone Gets Cut Up or Mauled In NE Street Fight; Three Face Charges

Three white men were charged with assault yesterday as a result of a battle royal with three Negroes, which also involved three policemen.

Everett Males, 29, 1215 Florida ave. ne., guarded at Gallinger Hospital suffering from a possible skull fracture. He faces three charges of assault on an officer.

Floyd Good, jr., 30, and Wiley M. Moneymaker, 32, both of 665 F st. ne., in jail, each charged with assault with a dangerous weapon. They will appear in Municipal Court today.

Three Treated, Freed

James Payden, 31, Catherlee Payden, 34, and Harry Cheek, 29, all of 611 Acker st. ne.

Police said the melee started at 11 p. m. Saturday in front of 665 F st. ne. when either one of the Paydens or Cheek made a comment while looking on from a crowd observing an argument involving Males, Good and Moneymaker.

James Payden, police said, was cut by Moneymaker, Catherlee Payden by Good. Good also was cut, as were Cheek and Males.

Set-to at Hospital

Police sent Moneymaker, who was unhurt, to jail, and loaded the others into a patrol wagon to go to Casualty Hospital for treatment.

At the hospital, police reported, Males seized a nightstick from Pvt. William I. Williams, and struck him over the head, then kicked Pvt. John D. Wildman in the groin. Wildman drew his blackjack and struck Males to prevent further injury to officers, according to the police account.

Before this, Pvt. James Salt, jr., a rookie from the Police Training School, suffered fractured knuckles. He had been assigned to the patrol wagon for experience.

After the fighting, the policemen were treated at Casualty and returned to duty.

Maryland's Melons Get Quality Mark

In an effort to recapture the spotlight in the melon market, Maryland this year is marketing cantaloupes with guaranteed sweetness.

More than 75,000 crates of Maryland cantaloupes are going to market this season with small paper labels on each melon showing the sugar content.

A blue label on a melon indicates 11 per cent or more sugar—"fancy" quality; a red label 10 per cent—"choice"; green, 9 per cent—"good."

The classifications were worked out in polls conducted last year in Washington, in which 500 housewives tried samples of various melons, and reported which they liked best.

The survey showed most consumers preferred melons with 9 per cent or more sugar.

Cathedral Choral Evensong Aids Cause of Church Music

By Paul Hume

The cause of church music was well served yesterday in Washington Cathedral.

There a summer choir of 20 men sang a choral evensong of contemporary music under the direction of Richard Dirksen, associate organist and choirmaster of the Cathedral. Dirksen's own compositions were represented in a new version of the Saturday Vesper hymn, "Now Sinks the Fiery Sun to Rest." It is a superb piece of choral writing.

The first and closing verses suit the mood of the text perfectly and provide rich choral sound. The middle verse is a tour de force of writing in highly complex contrapuntal style. Over a repeated figure the voices announce the lines of the text in varying rhythms. I do not feel this verse to be consonant with the mood of the entire hymn but it is a brilliant conception and was set forth by the choir with great precision and gusto.

Clarence Watters' "Laudate Pueri" was less moving emotionally but is also a fine example of the use of modern contrapuntal style in achieving fine religious music. A few more voices on each part would have helped the total sound of his music considerably.

It was exciting to hear Lili Boulanger's account of the Twenty-fourth Psalm once more. Written shortly before the premature death of this growing talent, it is a strongly syncopated frame for the text, "The Earth is the Lord's and the Fulness Thereof." Dirksen not only led his singers well in this as in the entire afternoon, but played the virtuoso organ accompaniment with proper flair.

Richard Clem supplied music for a poem by Hugh Landrum. Both composer and poet are Washingtonians and the collaboration gave words and music of beauty. Somewhat more familiar music came in Robin Milford's two anthems. The first of these, "Up to Those Bright Hills" is sensitive to both words and the medium of male voices. The second is quite unsatisfactory in its academic approach to the poignant lines, "If I Forget Thee, O Jerusalem."

The singing of the men belied the fact that they have been singing together for only two months and rehearsed the tricky modern works of the day for only four weeks.

New Religious Courses Set In Arlington

Attendance Voluntary At Dismissed Time Classes Now Planned

A new Arlington County program of "dismissed time" religious education will go into effect when school opens there September 6.

Under the program, children in the elementary schools will be released at 2 p. m. instead of the usual 3:30 p. m. twice a month to attend religious instruction classes given in the school buildings. Attendance at the classes is voluntary.

The "dismissed time" program was adopted by the County School Board last June after a hearing at which protests against the "released time" program then in effect were aired.

Under the released time program which opponents maintained was contrary to the 1948 Supreme Court decision in the McCollum case, religious education classes were held during school hours. Children who did not wish to attend were given special work to do.

In Fairfax County, the released time program was dropped by the school board last year in favor of a program emphasizing character development and spiritual values. The program was studied at two workshops during the summer and an outline is now in the hands of school board members for approval.

The Fairfax County plan will have no special textbook, and regular teachers will integrate the teaching into their courses in such fields as history, social science and English. Alexandria has no religious education program.

Dr. Minor C. Miller, director of the Department of Christian Education of the Virginia Council of Churches, said in Richmond that the council plans to continue its program of released time classes in full force during the coming school year.

During 1948-49, Dr. Miller said, 52,178 children in 367 Virginia school communities received religious instruction from 82 teachers employed by the council. About 85 instructors will be used this year, he said.

Many of the released time programs will be given in churches this year, he said, adding that the council favors giving the instruction outside the public buildings.

Widow Dead After 30-Ft. Fall at Home

A 53-year-old widow was injured fatally at 11 a. m. yesterday when she plunged 30 feet from her third-floor apartment at 1307 12th st. nw.

The woman, Mrs. Pearl M. Ordey, died in Gallinger Hospital little more than three hours after her body had crashed into a concrete areaway off 12th st. She had suffered head and internal injuries.

Mrs. Wilbur Brown, resident manager of the apartment, was among the first to rush to Mrs. Ordey's side following the plunge.

"She grasped my hand," Mrs. Brown said, "and said 'forgive me. I've been so depressed. I couldn't help it. I hope the Lord will forgive me but I wanted to die.'"

Friends said Mrs. Ordey's husband died about six years ago. She had been employed by the Government until several months ago, it was said.

No notes were left behind, police said. They said one window screen in the room was loose. Mrs. Ordey was probably alone at the time, police said, since a cousin with whom she lived had gone away for the day.

The body was removed to the morgue. Homicide squad detectives are investigating.

9 Persons Are Injured In Car-Bus Accident

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 28 (Spl.).—Nine persons were injured here late today in a freak bus-auto accident which narrowly missed claiming the life of the auto driver. No one was injured seriously.

Police said a loaded chartered bus, returning to Richmond from a religious meeting at Morrisville, skidded in a heavy rainstorm on Route 17, 10 miles west of here. The Greyhound bus, they said, ran over a curb, up an embankment, and turned over.

Then, they said, it slid back down, landing atop an auto going in the opposite direction.

Vincent Vasquez, 50, Stafford County real estate man, the driver, was pinned inside for 20 minutes until the Fredericksburg Rescue Squad extricated him. He was admitted to Fredericksburg Hospital for cuts and bruises, but will be released Monday. Two bus passengers, Thelma Carter, 30, and Lottie Carolina, 35, of Richmond, were treated at the hospital for shock.

What to Do?

Police Get Boys' Novel 'Confession'

Two teen-age boys voluntarily "confessed" a neighborhood misdeed yesterday, leaving Tenth Precinct police a little breathless over such a novelty.

Joseph and Anthony Tropea, 13-year-old twins, were passing a football in front of their home at 1463 Harvard st. nw. Anthony slipped a wild one that zoomed up and broke a street light.

A few minutes later, Pvt. C. W. Yeatman at the Tenth Precinct Station heard a thin voice over the phone say: "I broke a street lamp, and I want to pay for it."

It was Joseph. He and his father, Domenico Tropea, 55, a stone mason, decided it was the thing to do. Joseph could carry bundles at the Safeway store to pay it up.

Police said they'd call Joseph back after they figured it out. But the family was on their way to church, and asked the police to wait.

The police still were pondering last night. Privately, they wanted to pin a medal on Joseph. Publicly they were trying to figure out how to tell him they wouldn't prosecute, without making the law appear soft-hearted.

Teachers Open Work Series In Arlington

First of 4-Day Sessions Today at Jefferson School

Arlington school teachers will begin today a four-day series of sessions in preparation for the opening of the autumn term of public schools on September 6.

First of the preparatory sessions will be at 10:30 a. m. today at Thomas Jefferson Junior High School. William A. Early, first new Arlington school superintendent in 32 years, will be principal speaker at the morning session.

Wednesday, school principals will meet with teachers. The teachers will receive for the first time a book outlining the administrative details of the school system, policies and their duties.

That afternoon, Dr. Joseph B. Johnson, in charge of the county teaching material center, will tell representatives from each school of his work.

Boy, 14, Arrested In Library as Purse Snatcher

Victim was Miss Helen Bonnell, 1419 Monroe st. nw., whose purse was grabbed as she looked at photo exhibits.

Police Pvts. E. C. Coppage and T. G. Quinn searched the massive building without avail, along with alerted guards. Later, one of the guards spotted a 14-year-old boy trying to leave.

After questioning, he yielded the $23 to Coppage and Quinn, and led them to places he hid the purse and change purse. Juvenile court papers will be filed.

Arriving This Week

Displaced Polish Triplets Will Make Home in District

A Polish family of seven, including 8-month-old triplets, is among 18 displaced persons expected to arrive here this week.

Also in the group is a young couple with a 7-month-old child who are sponsored by Mrs. Halina Bilmanis of 2934 28th st. nw., widow of Dr. Alfred Bilmanis, Latvian Minister to the United States.

Mrs. Bilmanis said yesterday she is sponsoring the family, who are distant relations, because her husband, who died in 1948, was always anxious to help young people and she thought it would have pleased him.

The displaced persons coming to the Washington area are among 1085 aboard the International Refugee Organization-chartered transport General Holbrook, due in Boston today from Bremen. The DPs represent 11 nationalities. There are also 21 stateless persons aboard.

The Polish family is sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Solomon of 1368 Van Buren st. nw. and the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society.

The family includes Izrael Warzawski, 56, brother of Mrs. Solomon; a son, Leon, 29, another son, Ajzik, and his wife, Genia, both 33, and the triplets, Eva, Samuel and Leib.

The Warsawski family's story begins in 1940, when the German authorities in Poland threw the family into a ghetto and made them wear numbered uniforms. In 1943 Ajzik was taken away from his family and sent to the Buchenwald concentration camp. When liberated in 1945 he had to be hospitalized for weeks because of mistreatment.

His wife's fate was worse. Her two babies, one 3 and the other 1½ years old, were shot to death before her eyes and she was deported to the Ausschwitz camp. There she was confined with 200 other people in a crowded room they were not allowed to leave.

In addition to the Warzawskis, the DPs coming to Washington, according to the IRO, include the three Latvians, Andris Bilmanis, 24, Erika Bilmanis, 24, and Roberts Bilmanis, 7 months old, sponsored by Mrs. Bilmanis and the National Catholic Welfare Conference; Hirsch Michelson, 20, Lithuanian, sponsored by L. Mitchell of 2480 16th st. nw.

Also, Galust Galustian, 50, Astchik Galustian, 44, Georg, 18, and Aramais, 10, Russians, sponsored by R. E. Clark, 7100 Livingston rd.; and Ernst Olving, 49, Alice, 48, and Gerhard, 17, Estonians, sponsored by A. Olving, whose address is listed as the Congressional Country Club, Potomac, Md.

D. C. Woman Is Killed When Auto Overturns

Government Aide Traffic Victim on Way to Marriage Of Sister in N. C.

Miss Florence I. (Peggy) Simpson, 32, of 1633 Newton st. nw., was killed yesterday when a convertible auto in which she was riding overturned near Tryon, N. C., and landed on her in a creek.

Miss Simpson had left Washington to be maid of honor at the marriage of her half-sister, Miss Carol Coghlan, on September 10.

She was a stenographer in the office of the Assistant Secretary of the Army for the past four years. Before that she was with the Civil Service Commission in Alaska.

Besides her sister, she is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Coghlan of Hendersonville, N. C. Her brother, Troy, a West Point cadet, was killed two years

Friends here said Miss Simpson was riding with her sister's fiance, Rufus C. Allen, who received minor injuries. Funeral services will take place at Hendersonville Tuesday.

In local accidents, a 4-year-old Prince Georges County boy and a 3-year-old Washington lad were injured seriously yesterday in traffic accidents.

Kevin Cox of 65th ave., Maryland Park, Md., suffered fractures of both legs and cuts on the head and body in one mishap. Prince Georges County police said he ran from a group of children and was struck by an auto driven by Francis Eugene Schuster, 17, of Hunting Hill, Md., on Central ave., in Maryland Park. He was taken to Prince Georges County Hospital.

John Boyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Boyle, 628 E st. ne., was struck down, police said, in the 5100 block of 5th st. nw., where the family was visiting relatives. Driver of the car was identified as Dr. Thomas A. Hindman, 39, of 6 W. Washington st., Kensington, who recommended that the boy be taken to Children's Hospital immediately.

There, it was reported, he has a possible fractured skull and leg, cuts and bruises.

The boy's father, an all-prep football star at Gonzaga in 1937, suffered a fractured skull in a bus accident in 1938 while returning from a football game in Baltimore as a member of the University of Maryland freshman team. He is now a city fireman at Engine Company 23, New Hampshire and Georgia aves. nw.

D. C. University Women to Elect Officers Tonight

Reorganization of the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women will be completed by election of officers at a 7:30 o'clock meeting tonight at the AAUW national headquarters building, 1634 I st. nw.

The branch now has about 150 members. They remained in the national association when a majority of the Washington branch, numbering about 600 women, seceded in June.

The majority left and formed the rival University Women's Club because the national body voted that branches must accept qualified university graduates as members regardless of race, color, creed or religion.

Fairfax Sewerage Plan Questioned

The validity of a sewerage program on which residents of Fairfax County's Sanitary District No. 1 will vote Tuesday was questioned by a Falls Church city official last night.

LaRue Van Meter, Falls Church city attorney, raised the question as to whether citizens will be voting for one plan, when in actuality there is another, and contended that the plan to levy a construction charge and in addition a use charge is in violation of the Virginia constitution.

James J. Corbalis, Fairfax County sanitary engineer, in reply said "there is one and only plan, and it has been fully considered and approved by Mitchell & Pershing of New York, bonding attorneys."

Van Meter said that the bonding firm, in reply to a letter from him, said that the plan to which he referred "is not the plan involved in the financing."

"It is somewhat disturbing if the plan for financing arranged by the county is different from that set forth in the brochure which contains the representations on the basis of which the voters are being asked to decide the issue," he said.

Van Meter declares that he has reexamined the brochure and can find no reference to any other plan and "no qualification or disavowal by you or responsibility for the legality of the plan." Van Meter asks the bonding attorneys to clear up the apparent discrepancy in time for the referendum Tuesday.

Falls Church residents do not vote in the three-million-dollar referendum Tuesday. Falls Church, whose city council has resolved to abandon Fairfax County sewerage facilities, is interested in annexing part of the sanitary district.

School Bells Also Mean Vaccines

By Dr. George C. Ruhland

(This is the first of a series of six articles prepared by Dr. George C. Ruhland, health officer of the District of Columbia, on the immunization of children against disease as school days approach once again.)

Various methods are used to control communicable diseases, among which is vaccination or immunization. Smallpox vaccination, discovered late in the eighteenth century was the first to be developed. Since smallpox vaccination was made compulsory, smallpox has practically disappeared.

Typhoid vaccination, which was first carried out in man in 1897, has been used most extensively with military personnel. Diphtheria immunization was developed just before the first World War, but was not used widely until about 1925. This has helped to bring about a marked decline in prevalence of this disease.

Although whooping cough vaccines were available for many years, it was not until about 1935 that effective vaccines were developed. Tetanus immunizations was developed about 1925, but it was a decade before active immunization was used to prevent this infection, commonly known as lockjaw.

It is now a general public health practice to routinely immunize all children 1 year of age against diphtheria, smallpox, tetanus and whooping cough. Typhoid vaccination is given when there are indications for its use, as will be described later. All persons immunized with one of these agents need re-immunization or "booster doses" at varying intervals of time in order to maintain a maximum degree of protection.

It is well for the parent or guardian to prepare a written record of the immunization and vaccination series and of booster doses. The record should be kept up-to-date and in a safe place. For if at a later date a child becomes ill, from any cause, and must have medical care or enter a hospital, the attending physician will need to know of the child's immunization record.

Angry Parents Halt Transfer Of Students

The Fairfax County School board, under pressure from angry parents, has rescinded an order calling for the transfer of students to less crowded county schools, it was learned yesterday.

Meanwhile, petitions calling for an elected school board had been started in the county—partially the result of the parents' anger.

The board action came late last Friday night after departure from the meeting of some 50 parents who had denounced the proposed shift.

The shift, ordered at the August 16 board meeting, would transfer eighth, ninth and tenth grade students in the Clifton-Centreville area from Fairfax High School to Herndon High School; and the elementary students in the Pender area from Fairfax Elementary School to Floris Elementary School.

School Superintendent W. T. Woodson yesterday said the board reversed itself "in view of the fact that the citizens hadn't had enough time to study the matter." The board, he said, felt it might be better to see what enrollment is at the fall term before taking any further action.

He added, however, that "as the county population moves westward, some adjustment will have to be made."

Earlier, the board had concluded the meeting with the citizens by scheduling a meeting tonight at which time facts and figures in defense of the transfer would be submitted. The meeting tonight has been called off.

Mrs. Audrey Neibert, president of the Centreville P-TA, said her group among others had started the elected school board petitions circulating. She said sentiment for an elected school board has been building up for some time.

Citizens' groups in favor of an elected school board have scheduled a meeting at the Centreville Elementary School, September 14, to consider the progress of the petition and discuss further action, she said.

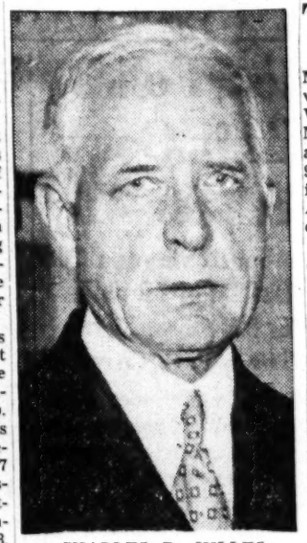
Charles D. Hilles Dies at 82; Onetime National GOP Chief



CHARLES D. HILLES

Speonk, L. I., Aug. 28 (NYHT). Charles Dewey Hilles, 82, former chairman of the Republican National Committee, died here yesterday at his summer home, Seatuck Lodge.

Although Mr. Hilles was best known for his political activities as a former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, secretary to President Taft and for many years Republican National Committeeman from New York, he also had a long career in welfare work among underprivileged boys and was the founder of the model home for boys near Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.

In the business world, he was an insurance underwriter and at his death was a member of the executive committee of the Employers Liability Assurance Corp.

Mr. Hilles retired in 1937 as Republican National Committeeman from New York, after 17 years in the post but was treasurer of the arrangements committee at the Republican national conventions both in 1944 and 1948.

Born in Ohio

Born on an Ohio farm, Mr. Hilles was graduated from high school and studied for two years at Maryland Academy. At the age of 20, he was appointed secretary of the Boys Industrial School at Lancaster, Ohio, and in 1900 became its president.

His work there attracted the attention of the New York Juvenile Asylum, founded half a century earlier by Peter Cooper and other philanthropists, and he was brought to New York City to direct its activities.

He entered politics in 1908, when an Ohio friend, Arthur T. Vorys, a preconvention campaign manager for William Howard Taft, asked him to survey the situation in New York, New Jersey and the New England States. He performed a like service during the campaign, and after the election was appointed Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

After two years, he became secretary to President Taft and in 1912 chairman of the Republican National Committee. He conducted Mr. Taft's campaign for reelection, which was unsuccessful due to the bolt from the party of former President Theodore Roosevelt.

As head of the Republican Party, Mr. Hilles was largely responsible for the nomination of Charles Evans Hughes in 1916 and Warren G. Harding in 1920, with Calvin Coolidge as his running mate for Vice President.

Squelched Ford Bid

In 1924 he squelched a movement to make Henry Ford a candidate for President by either party, and Mr. Coolidge was returned to the White House. Four years later he refused at first to accept President Coolidge's "I do not choose to run" statement, and took little active part in the convention that nominated Herbert Hoover. At the end of the Hoover Administration, he tried to retire from the national committee, but was persuaded to remain until 1937.

What Are You Planning For Labor Day? Why Not Weekend in Washington?

IF YOU are planning to go out of town for Labor Day weekend you are probably already kneedeep in road maps, suitcases, picnic baskets and bathing suits. But if you are planning to stay home you are probably kneedeep in gloom and self-pity. Well, tsk for you if you are.

There are things to do even if you get no further than your own back yard. This is the last long holiday weekend you will get in the mellow summer sun this year. You might want to get yourself that novel you've been meaning to read or an armful of mystery stories and spend one day sitting in the shade of a tree or in the full summer sun with a book and a large apple. Don't forget the salt for the apple.

Or, if you'd like a gay week-end . . .

Washington does have places to go and things to do as any tourist can tell you. Sometimes we forget that the town we work in can be a town to play in. There are night clubs here just as there are in New York. If you are saving money by not going away, you might feel justified in asking your husband to treat you to a very big steak and champagne evening at the plushiest restaurant or night club in Washington.

One young couple gave themselves a vacation weekend right here in town by moving from their stuffy one-room apartment to one of the hotels. They swam in the pool, ate all of their meals in the hotel dining room and big restaurants, went dancing, and to the summer theater just as if they were visitors from out-of-town. "We were, too," they insist. "We were just in the Nation's Capital for the weekend. We live in Humdrum the rest of the time, you know."

If the weather holds good for the weekend you might go bicycling at Hains Point or walking. Or maybe rent a rowboat and go fishing. Or take a boatride up the Potomac.

The summer theaters are offering plays Saturday and Sunday nights, "The Male Animal" at Meridian Hill and "For Love Or Money" at Olney, Md. Meridian Hill comes up with a new play next Monday evening while Olney takes a one day breather.

Fun for Youngsters, Too

IF YOU do decide to stay home this Labor Day weekend don't forget to provide some special fun for the youngsters so they won't feel they've been deprived of a holiday. In a home where a working mother is normally too busy to bake cookies, even that is a treat for youngsters who are permitted to watch and help and lick out the mixing bowl.

It needn't be something elaborate that will tire you. There's a simple failure-proof recipe which calls for 1 and 1/3 cups (15 oz. can) of sweetened condensed milk and ½ cup of peanut butter. To this add any one of these ingredients you have on hand: 2 cups raisins, 2 cups corn flakes, 3 cups shredded coconut, 2 cups bran flakes, 1 cup chopped nut meats or 2 cups chopped dates. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto well greased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) for 12 minutes or until brown. Remove from pan and try to keep the little helpers out of the cookie supply until the cookies are cool.

Or why not serve afternoon tea in high style? It will be fun for the children just because it's a change, and will give them a chance to learn a few fundamentals of etiquette at the same time.

Even a pickup meal can seem like a party if you add something unusual to it—like makeshift popcorn made from puffed cereal heated in the oven and covered with melted butter.

Maybe this is the weekend you make good your promise to let your young teenage daughter give herself a facial under supervision. Or to let your son get loose in his father's tool chest, while his father is home to help guard against crushed fingers.

If you want to take the children out but don't want to get mixed up with the crowds of tourists at the Zoo and the parks, maybe this would be the right weekend to take them to visit a farm in Maryland or Virginia.

Get Your Groceries Early

DON'T FORGET to lay in an extra supply of groceries for the coming weekend! Most food stores will be locked up tight, of course, on Labor Day next Monday. They're getting in lots of hams, frankfurters, and other picnic goodies right now to have them ready for you when you go shopping.

If it's franks you buy, you might like to give 'em a really different flavor by barbecuing 'em. It's easy to do on a picnic if there's a fireplace. Make thick barbecue sauce at home and carry it out in a jar, along with a pan to use in heating the franks. Put them in the sauce over the fire and heat 5 to 8 minutes. Here's how to make enough sauce for two pounds of franks:

Thick Barbecue Sauce

2 small onions
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon chili powder
¾ cup water
¾ cup catsup
1 teaspoon salt

Shred onions very fine. Mix all ingredients in a heavy skillet. Cover and simmer about 45 minutes. Makes one pint sauce.

P. S.—If you like your sauce to really pack a wallop, add ¼ teaspoon red pepper to the above recipe.

Rings on Their Fingers

Announcement has been made in The Hague of the engagement of Miss Henrica C. W. Moorman to John M. McSweeney. The announcement was made by Miss Moorman's mother, Mrs. Johanna Kuipers. A member of the staff of the Netherlands Embassy in Washington for the past year, the bride-elect is the daughter of Vice Admiral H. C. W. Moorman, Royal Netherlands Navy, who is Secretary of State for Navy, The Hague.

Mr. McSweeney, son of Mrs. E. M. McSweeney of Boston and the late Mr. McSweeney, is a graduate of Brown University and a member of the University Club. He is an American Foreign Service officer currently assigned to the Department of State.

The wedding is planned for early fall.

Pierson—Cauchon

Brig. Gen. Albert Pierson, USA, and Mrs. Pierson, of Fort DeRussy, Honolulu, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sallie Rounseville, to Lieut. (jg) Herve Page Cauchon, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herve P. Cauchon, of Lakewood, R. I.

Miss Pierson is a graduate of Holton Arms Junior College, Washington, in 1946 and was graduated from Katharine Gibbs School in New York the following year. She was secretary to the Curator of Graphic Arts at the National Gallery in Washington. She also attended George Washington University, and has just completed a year of study at the University of Miami.

Lieutenant Cauchon attended Providence College, Providence, R. I., and was graduated in 1943 with a B.S. degree in chemistry. He was commissioned and received his wings in the Navy in March, 1945, at Pensacola, Fla. He was formerly attached to Bombing Fighting Squadron Four on the aircraft carrier USS Tarawa and was based at N.A.S. Kahului, Maui, for a brief period in 1947. He is now with the Fleet All Weather Training Unit Pacific at N.A.S. Barber's Point, Honolulu. The wedding will take place in the late fall.

Neulands at Greenbrier

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Neuland who have been visiting in Mrs. Neuland's former home, Indianapolis, are spending a few days at the Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., before returning to Washington.

On the Party Front...

LEGISLATORS and other prominent Washington personalities took a turn at lobbying yesterday. But not at Capitol Hill.

As guests at Mr. and Mrs. Douglas I. Hatch's mint julep party, they did their lobbying on card tables on the lawn of the Hatch Farm in Burke, Va.

Mrs. Hatch had several tables set up with her original game, Lobby, and guests spent a good share of their time figuring out moves for the miniature bills and other props of the game.

Honor guests for the affair were James J. Shea, who manufactured the game, and Mrs. Shea of Springfield, Mass. Among others there were Senator and Mrs. William Langer, Senator and Mrs. Karl Mundt, Senator and Mrs. James P. Kem, Mrs. Pat McCarran, Mrs. George Malone, Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harkness and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Warner.

MRS. JAMES E. MILLS, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Mills of Quantico, Va., entertained on Friday at a Coke party for her house guest, Mrs. W. F. Lackey, and Miss Dorothea Webber, who is visiting Lieut. Col. and Mrs. R. M. C. Tompkins. Mrs. Lackey is here from Rome, Ga., where Colonel and Mrs. Mills lived two years before coming to Quantico. Miss Webber's home is in Chesham, England.

Other guests were Mrs. Guerry Bishop, Mrs. A. R. Stacy, Mrs. E. W. Durant, Mrs. William Van Ryzen, Mrs. Stan Trachta, Mrs. Leonard Masen, Mrs. G. S. Baze

Florence King Is Partner In New 'Not-New' Shop

By Norma Lanum

CURRENT chapter in the lives of Florie King and Henri Ehrsam—co-owners of the Not New Shop in Alexandria, Va.—would make a peach of a Broadway comedy.

Everything's there. The leading characters: two popular happy-go-lucky Washington career girls. The setting: a quaint row house in colonial Alexandria. And the plot: A small commission business begun by the leading ladies grows like a family of schmoos until . . . until . . .

Well, the only thing this play lacks is an ending. But you can bet a pair of opening night tickets that when it comes it'll be a good one.

Florie and Henri, whose business it is to sell other persons' outgrown clothes and house furnishings now find themselves engulfed in transactions over oil tankers, airlines, construction dredges and DC 3's.

The clientele of Not New, who at first consisted mostly of curious neighbor Alexandrians, now includes a dozen or so headline personalities from the Capital scene.

FLORIE, the daughter of Fleet Admiral King, and her partner are State licensed commission agents. As such they may deal in practically everything.

When any of the vast circle of friends of the popular duo hears tell of something for sale—no matter what it may be—he or she gives a salestalk for Not New. And before they realize it the girls have become tangled with several big business deals.

Along with the more prosaic items they have listed in their "offers" register—a list of what their consigners want to get rid of—are a small local airlines, five DC 3's with enough spare parts to last a year, and several suites of furniture. (The three oil tankers were withdrawn since the season isn't good for scrap iron.)

Already they have sold automobiles, washing machines, "thousands of dollars" worth of Oriental rugs.

Among the listings in the "desires" book—things their acquaintances want to buy—was a construction dredge with a 10½-inch pipe which they finally were able to locate.

All of this might terrify the average freshman careerist. Not Florie and Henri. They tackle each commission job, whether it be a boy's snowsuit, size 3, or an airplane, with equal self-assurance, sprinkled with a lot of good humor and cool thinking.

AS YOU can imagine, business is busting out all over. But the girls aren't quite sure how long they can keep up the stiff pace. Both work six days a week in the shop and in spare time they maintain a steady correspondence regarding items too large to fit in the showroom.

But Florie and Henri will hate to outgrow their present headquarters. The red brick row house rests on the cobblestone sidewalk on S. Royal st. Black shutters with white trim border the three flights of windows and the door has just been painted a "shocking pink."

The first floor houses the shop. Florie receives the stock and prices it each Monday and Thursday in the front of the second floor. And the second floor back and the third floor serve as living quarters for Henri and her two young daughters.

Henri, who could do a good business in interior decorating, has restored her quarters with authentic early American furnishings. If she takes a liking to a customer she might have him or her up for a cocktail. They'd chat about that Italian linen banquet table cloth which the girls have been commissioned to sell. Or Henri might show her guest the wedding dress a German war bride brought in. It's an original German design, delicate white net hand painted in gold.

FAVORITE customers at Not New range from the young Episcopal clergyman who collects old books to a prominent Washington society woman who is easily bored with her exclusively labeled dresses.

The latter wears her costumes once—occasionally twice and frequently not at all—and then either brings them in personally or has her maid drop them by to be sold again at about half price.

One afternoon a woman came in and browsed around the silver shelf at the shop. Suddenly she grabbed one dish and breathlessly proclaimed, "I've found it! It matches the one Evalyn Walsh McLean gave me."

As Henri says, "you never know just who you have in the shop."

Any plans in the immediate future for these ambitious young business women? "Who has time for the future?" asks Florie.

"We have a hard enough time taking care of our current consigners and customes. I guess we'll just take what the future brings us."

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Rainy days come surprisingly often. Youngsters find themselves without anything to do. Children get into mischief because they're bored with their games and toys.

Here's a suggestion that may help meet these situations. Get a sturdy wooden box and hinge a cover on it. With the help of the children, it can be decorated with paint and brass-headed tacks so that it looks as though it were a treasure chest. Then begin to collect odds and ends that can be used for toys that youngsters like to make and play with.

A piece of broomstick from which wheels can be sawed, spools, paper salt boxes, paraffined milk containers, bits of yarn—these are but a few of the many things that can be stored away for the rainy day or the idle hour.

A scroll saw, tack hammer, a couple of small carving tools, nails and tacks, and a tube of glue provide the equipment needed.

You'll be surprised and the youngsters pleased with the autos, boats, houses, and a thousand and one other small toys that can be made from such simple things. A few cans of enamel paint and some cheap paint brushes can be used to add color and finish to the treasure chest products.

Drama in Furs—The Mink Stole

Time was when every woman's ambition was to own a mink coat. Now she wants that—plus a mink stole! For the so-called "small furs"—stoles, capes, scarfs—have taken the fashion world by storm. They are not so small either. Some of the smartest stoles have even added tiny sleeves and collars.

A luxury, yes—but stoles are also the most useful furs one can own. You wear them over dresses early in the fall, by day and night. Later you wear them with suits and end up in winter wearing your stole with an untrimmed cloth coat.

About Recipe For Shoo-Fly Pie

Can you give me a recipe for Shoo-Fly Pie? A. M.

Here is an old Lehigh (Pa.) County recipe for this dish. It appears in the Pennsylvania Dutch section of the "United States Regional Cook Book," by Ruth Berolzheimer (Halcyon House.)

SHOO-FLY PIE

1½ cups sifted flour
1 cup brown sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ cup hot water
½ cup molasses
Plain pastry.

Make crumbs by combining flour, sugar, salt, and shortening. Line two piepans with pastry. Dissolve soda in hot water and combine with molasses. Pour into pastry-lined pans, top with crumbs, and bake in very hot oven (450 degree Fahrenheit) for 10 minutes, then reduce to moderate (350 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake 20 to 30 minutes longer, or until firm. This recipe makes two (9-inch) pies.

My little boy vomited on the studio couch and floor. How can I get rid of the odor which clings to couch mattress and floor? Desperate Mother.

First step is, of course, as thorough a cleaning as possible. Undoubtedly you have already done so, but it might be well to mop the floor again with soap and water, rinse with mop wrung out in clear water, and wipe with dry cloth. After the floor dries out thoroughly (use a fan to hasten this if weather is humid), a floor polish will help to kill the odor.

Use the foam type of upholstery cleaner on the couch mattress. It may be impossible to get the stuffing thoroughly cleansed. The odor should disappear, however, after repeated airings outdoors. A household deodorant should also help. Such sprays, designed for use on upholstery, etc., are sold in the housewares sections of some department stores.

Why can't I turn out good cakes consistently with this new quick method of making cakes? When the cakes turn out good I think they are better than the ones made by the old method, but I do not find them dependable. What causes them to be heavy and with a thick streak through them? D. O. A.

With the quick method of making cakes, coarseness and a heavy streak at the bottom of the cake could be caused by incomplete mixing of the ingredients or having the batter too thin.

Incomplete mixing may result from either not stirring the batter long enough or adding the fat when it is too cold. In the conventional method where the fat is creamed with the sugar before the dry ingredients and liquid are added, if the shortening is too hard it just takes longer to cream it, but if stirring is continued until it is soft and creamy, it doesn't affect the finished cake. However, with the other method where all ingredients are added at once, if the fat is too hard, it doesn't become completely mixed with the other ingredients in the prescribed mixing time. If beating is continued beyond the recommended time too much of the gas, which starts to form just as soon as the baking powder is wet, is lost before the cake reached the oven and there isn't enough left to raise the cake as it bakes. In this way it results in a heavy cake.

The cake batter may be too thin if you do not use the same measuring methods each time you bake or the ingredients are not measured every time in standard measuring cups and spoons. You should have two measuring cups, one for dry ingredients and one for liquid. A standard measuring cup for dry ingredients has the full one cup measure at the very top so it is possible to level off the top of the cup with a knife. A liquid measuring cup should be glass and the mark for the full cup measure is about ¼ inch from the top so that when a full cup is measured it can be moved without spilling.

To measure flour properly, it should always be sifted just before measuring, spooned lightly into the cup without shaking or tapping to avoid packing. When the cup is full the flour should be leveled off at the top with the blade of a knife. To measure liquid, set the cup on a level surface and fill until the liquid is exactly even with the mark on the cup when your eye is at the same level as the marker.

If after you have mixed the cake exactly according to direction, the batter seems thinner than that you used to have by the conventional method, I'd suggest you add a tablespoon or two more of flour. The thicker batter achieved by the conventional method is due somewhat to the formation of an emulsion such as is formed when oil and vinegar are mixed correctly in making mayonnaise. If you have ever made mayonnaise by that method you know that if you do not add the oil to the vinegar slowly enough and beat it constantly, it sometimes will not get as thick as it does at other times. In the same way, the ingredients mixed by the quick method sometimes do not become as thick as if they were mixed by the old method. Since you can't remix them, the only way to correct the trouble is to add flour.

PETUNIA!

My chores are finally finished
My sweeping's up and done—
The carpet glows and sparkles
In the bright September sun

Then you'd better draw the blinds, Petunia, till the sun moves on. Bright sun not only fades the colors, it also dries out the natural oils in the wool.

Unusual Opportunity
If you are looking for more money and would like to have help to become an established salesman at good income handling a nationally known electrical unit and associated products, we would like to talk to you. First, kindly give yourself a rating: 1. Are you willing to put in a substantial amount of time and hard work on an opportunity to earn $500 to $600 a month this year and more in 1950? 2. Are you married or otherwise obligated to earn a good income? 3. Are you really sincere in your ambition to better your scale of living? Everyone wishes he had more. We want men who are going to do something about it. 4. Are you physically able to do a day's work? 5. Do you own a car? 6. Have you had sales experience? 7. Do most of the people you meet seem to like you? 8. Think this one over carefully. 9. Would you work just as hard alone in the field on a job you like as you would in the constant presence of a supervisor?
If you can truefully say yes to most of these questions, not necessarily all, and three good citizens will vouch for your honesty and good reputation, you may be our man. At least we should talk it over. Kindly come to

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Charlie Chaplin, now in New York, is writing the screen play for his next picture. It will be autobiographic, with scenes about his beginnings as a clown and music-hall entertainer . . . William Morris, jr., who once was cradled in Sir Harry Lauder's arms and whose agency has represented Lauder for over 40 years, plans to fly to Scotland to see the ailing star . . . Alexander Ince will establish a summer-stock theater in Liberty, N. Y., next season.

Al Hirschfeld, the bearded artist who illustrated S. J. Perelman's new book, "Listen to the Mocking Bird," was at a party where he met Gerald Kersh, the bearded writer. They studied each other's beards, which were the same length and design . . . "I've been asked to review the 'Beards' book for the New York Post Home News," said Kersh. Hirschfeld said: "The Christian Science Monitor asked me to review it" . . . Then Kersh asked for water with which he could swallow some pills, and explained: "I've had malaria" . . . "Ive had malaria, too," said Hirschfeld. "Got it in the South Seas" . . . They glared at each other, then Kersh placed a dime between his teeth and bent it in two . . . Hirschfeld told him: "If there's been a contest going on, you win."

Marc Connelly, the author-director-producer, will return to Yale to resume his teaching at the Drama School. At the Algonquin one day, Connelly discussed the comedy, "At War With The Army," which did well on Broadway last season and was sold to the movies. It was the work of some of Connelly's students. One of his friends suggested: "Your salary at Yale should be on a percentage basis—giving you a piece of any plays written by your students" . . . Connelly then revealed that technically all such plays, like theses for degrees, are the property of the university. But Yale always waives its rights to them.

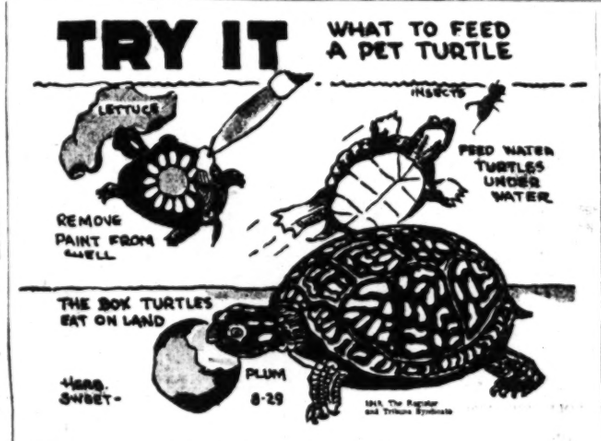
This Funny World

"No, we don't get the contract, boss, but the day wasn't a total loss—I took him for six bucks on the golf course"

TRY IT — WHAT TO FEED A PET TURTLE



Many of you will have the care of a pet turtle enter into your daily life when you bring them home from camp and vacations. Just because a turtle makes no complaints when it gets hungry is no sign that it does not need feed and care.

Small turtles make the best pets for they will thrive in an aquarium or in a basin in a backyard pen. The bigger the turtle the larger his living quarters should be. The little painted souvenir turtles that you buy should have the paint chipped off, but be very careful not to harm the shell. The paint retards the turtle's growth.

Water turtles feed under water. To keep them healthy drop bits of chopped meat, fish, turtle food, snails, earthworms or insects into the water. Some will eat lettuce leaves or berries. The land turtles or tortoises eat soft raw fruits and even toast. Remove all uneaten food, and serve small portions once a day. Judge these by the amount eaten the day before.

TOMORROW — STRETCH AND SHAPE AN OLD FELT HAT.

THE DOMESTIC SCENE

Q. Driving negligently, a man struck a stray hog. The car overturned and his small son was injured. The son brought an action for damages against the father since the father had liability insurance. Is this a good lawsuit, or will it be thrown out of court?

A. At common law a child apparently could sue his parent for injury negligently inflicted. But the general rule in the United States is that an infant cannot sue the parent for such injury, and vice versa. This is to preserve family harmony. The fact that the parent has liability insurance and would not personally have to pay damages (thus not disturbing family harmony) has no bearing. The danger of collusion to defraud the insurance company is the reason. At least one New Hampshire case has held that where the parent is insured, the child may sue, but the weight of authority, including the District and Maryland, is the other way.—F.L.D.

Cases discussed illustrate general principles. They should not be construed as legal advice to particular cases. Take your legal problems to your lawyer.

My Perfect Day

My perfect day is one when I . . . Have many things to do . . . And yet have time to rest and play . . . And find a friend or two . . . A day when I am busy and . . . I labor with a will . . . Until the shadows lengthen and . . . The factories are still . . . When there are smiles around the hearth . . . And friendly hands to shake . . . And every thought I think is one . . . For someone else's sake . . . Nor do I mind if skies are gray . . . And rain is in the street . . . Or if the wind is wild or if . . . There is a scorching heat . . . My perfect day is one when I . . . Have lived the hours through . . . With work and play and time enough . . . To find a friend or two.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

12-Year-Old Helps Bill Get His Bearings

Some time ago I did a piece about the "compass" in the floor of the Ben Franklin Postoffice. I pointed out that its directions were reversed.

Mrs. J. T. Kochanski of 631 S. Fillmore st., Arlington, Va., adds an interesting sequel to my item. She says:

"When my 12-year-old sister, Mary Bess Whidden, came up from San Angelo, Texas, to visit me, I showed her the compass and explained that it was backwards.

"But Mary Bess quickly pointed out that the compass was probably intended to show not actual directions, but the directions for the map of the world inlaid on the floor beside the compass."

A fine thing. She's 12 years old and the first time she lays eyes on the postoffice she notices a map that I've been walking on for five years without seeing it. Something has got to be done about these precocious kids.

BOTH KINDS WORK "ON THE HILL"

"Senator Reports Loss of Antique Pitcher," said the headline.

How was I to know the story was about Senator Spessard L. Holland's car being broken into?

I thought the item was going to be about one of Clark Griffith's Senators.

THE OTHER HALF

Most of the time our items about public servants tell of deeds of courtesy and kindness. But Steve Coy of 5215 Watson st. nw. encountered the other kind.

As a Cabin John streetcar prepared to pull away from the stop at Wisconsin and M sts. nw., two men dashed up and rapped on the door for admittance.

The traffic light was just changing to red, and the car was practically empty.

But the motorman shook his head firmly, and pulled his car up about 10 feet beyond the end of the platform. And there he waited until the light changed to green.

"May his soul rest in peace," murmured one of Capital Transit's frustrated patrons, "and the sooner the better."

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE

The most frequently misspelled word I see is "lovable." Practically every Give-Away letter lists a "loveable" pet.

LIGHT READING

Mrs. William J. Devlin of 2242 N. Columbus st., Arlington, Va., lives near several radio and television transmitter towers.

Like all such towers, these are lighted at night, to comply with CAA regulations. A great many airplanes fly over the area, and without proper lighting there would be danger of accidents.

But Mrs. Devlin has noticed that when Arlington has an electric power failure, the lights on the WTTG tower go off, whereas the lights on most other towers remain on. And she wonders why.

The explanation is that WTTG does not have an emergency generator yet, although the station hopes to have one soon.

No law requires a radio or television station to lay out the dough for one of these expensive emergency setups, but many stations buy them anyhow.

Not to keep their towers lighted, but to stay on the air in the event of a public power breakdown.

Apparently radio has now reached the point where it doesn't dare quit in the middle of a program. If it's a soap opera, we've got to hear the end, so that we'll know whether the heroine survives her latest catastrophes.

If it's a news commentator, we bite our fingernails until his cheery "Good night" at the end assures us that the world will not fall apart for another 24 hours.

And if it's a give-away program, half the Nation would be ready for strait-jackets if a mysterious silence were to blot out the call that decides the giant jackpot.

But of course if the power failure interrupted any of the handful of other types of programs now on the air, it wouldn't make much difference. Nobody listens anyhow.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

J. Warner Mills 3d, 1606 Abingdon dr., Alexandria, Va., tells me that on the bulletin board of the Alexandria Peoples Drug Store there is a notice which says:

"Kids! Why buy comic books? Rent them at Johnson's. Three cents for three days."

0 RUNS, 0 HITS, ½ ERROR

Mrs. Louise L. Derthick of 30 Old Glebe rd., Arlington, Va., tells me that Unser Arch MacDonald recently made a neat recovery on what started out to be an interesting spoonerism.

Arch began by saying: "Tomorrow's dame will be a . . ." But he caught himself in time, and corrected it to: "Tomorrow's game will be a day game."

Now that it's over, Mrs. Derthick thinks it's a pity that Arch didn't go ahead and complete the sentence. It would probably have come out:

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Battle Brews Over Ilgenfritz

(Editor's Note—While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

By Robert S. Allen

President Truman doesn't know it yet, but he has another brawl on his hands to get confirmation for an appointee to a key defense post.

Robert S. Allen

The appointee is Carl Ilgenfritz, U. S. Steel Corporation vice president, to be chairman of the Army-Navy Munitions Board.

The fight over Ilgenfritz is the battle over former Governor Mon Wallgren (for chairman of the National Security Resources Board) all over again, plus some new trimmings.

The latter are Ilgenfritz's insistence that he be allowed to continue to draw his $70,000-a-year U. S. Steel pay as well as the $14,000 that goes with the Munitions Board job. His argument is he will lose his pension rights if he gives up his corporation salary.

Strongly backing him are Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, Senator Millard Tydings (D., Md.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, and Senator Chan Gurney (N. D.), ranking Republican member of the committee. In a stormy appearance before the committee, Johnson stated the proposed extraordinary salary arrangement has President Truman's approval.

As a Senator during the war, the President repeatedly condemned the employment of $1-a-year men.

Leading the fight against Ilgenfritz are Senators Harry Byrd (D., Va.), Lyndon Johnson (D., Tex.), and Wayne Morse (R., Ore.). The last two tangled hotly with Secretary Johnson at a closed-door meeting.

"Permitting this man to continue to draw his private salary while working for the Government would be unsound public policy," Senator Johnson argued. "It would do more harm than any good the Government could possibly get out of Ilgenfritz."

Morse was equally emphatic. He told Johnson:

"Democracy can be no stronger than the confidence of the people in their Government. This appointment will shake that confidence to its roots. It is just as important that the man heading the Munitions Board be free from suspicion as once it was important that Caesar's wife be kept free of suspicion. As head of this crucial defense agency, Ilgenfritz must be in a position where no finger can be pointed at him on any ground.

"It is indefensible that the head of this board with vast power over steel and other materials of defense should be subsidized by the dominant steel interests of the country. I am not sure that we should permit any man to hold this job who has connections with the steel industry, but I am sure we should not confirm a man who fails to break his bonds with his private industry when he takes this key office."

"That indispensable doctrine is absurd," snapped Morse. "It is ridiculous to say there is only one man for that job out of 150 million Americans. If you will look around, you will find other men just as good who will not insist on salaries from outside sources all out of proportion to what other citizens expect their Government to pay them. I will never agree that the patriotism of American businessmen has a price tag on it."

A majority of the Senate Committee favors confirmation. But Byrd and the others have served notice they will wage a bitter floor fight. With the Senate logjammed by a huge stack of unfinished business, the outlook for Ilgenfritz is not promising.

'Point Four' Aid

The innovations are the United Hybrid Growers of Iowa.

Consisting of 31 concerns operating plant-breeding farms and seed-processing plants in the corn-belt States, the group has been asked by European governments to advise them on how to develop hybrid corn and disease-resistant grains in order to increase good crops.

John W. Nicholson, UHG head, has been active for several years in spreading the gospel abroad of American technique in scientific seed culture. In 1946, his group sent 66 varieties of hybrid corn to Italy. As a result, Italian corn production on the experimental farms has soared to 120 bushels an acre, as against a previous high of 30 bushels and a European average of 12 bushels.

Stormy Weather

Latest outbreak is a haymaker hurled by Republican Representative Richard J. Welch, San Francisco, at Gov. Earl Warren.

Welch has served 25 consecutive years in Congress and is the dean of the California delegation. An ardent follower of the late Senator Hiram Johnson, Welch is a militant liberal. He rarely intervenes in State politics, but his Irish ire was aroused by the welter of lobbyists and vice scandals swirling around the present Republican regime. So, rising in the House, Welch heaved this brickbat at Governor Warren:

"Every right-thinking citizen in the country will symphatize with the people of Califonria in their demand for clean and wholesome government. California has over 10 million people. Surely among that vast number there is certain to be found a man of strong will and determination who would not only clean up the legislative branch of the State government, but would drive from the State what is now a well-organized gangsterism.

"California can and must be relieved of this terrible stigma by the election of a Governor who would carry into effect the policies laid down by the late Hiram Johnson. It will not be done by an attractive-looking, hand-shaking, back-slapping, gutless Governor. Would to God California could have another Governor fashioned after Hiram Johnson. The need for such leadership is far greater than at any time in the history of my great State."
